“The History and Genealogy of the Colegrove Family in America, with Biographical Sketches, Portraits, etc.,” by William Colegrove, D.D., LL.D., of Tallula, Menard Co., Illinois, is a 12mo. book of 792 pages, which can be had of the author for $4.00 cloth, $5.00 morocco with gilt edges; postage, 16c. There are over sixty blank numbered pages for manuscript notes, and a good index, in two columns—the males in the left column and the females in the right. The work takes up the line of Francis Colegrove who came from London, Eng., to Warwick, R. I., about 1680. He was probably born at or near Swansea, Wales.

TO MY KINDRED,

Honored and Beloved, though scattered very widely, and many of them not personally known to me, this Volume is affectionately Dedicated by the AUTHOR.

PREFACE.

At last I see accomplished the cherished purpose of many years; and with great satisfaction I present to my friends, largely through their kind co-operation, a work which, though not perfect, will yet, I trust, supply a long felt deficiency, and remove a galling reproach.

I have been much and generously assisted in my researches by a multitude of kind friends, to whom I return sincere and hearty thanks. It is impossible to enumerate them all; but the following, on account of the peculiar value of their services, I cannot omit to mention:

Dr. J. B. Colegrove and Gen. S. Colegrove of Washington, D. C.; Rev. D. W. C. Colegrove, of Westfield, Mass.; Rev. M. Colegrove of Corry, Pa.; Dr. J. P. Colegrove of Salamanca, N. Y.; Mr. W. J. Colegrove of Smethport, Pa.; Mr. S. C. Colegrove of Burdett, N. Y.; Mr. J. T. Colegrove of Morenci, Mich.; Dr. W. H. Colegrove of Johnstown, N. Y.; Mr. E. Colegrove of New York City; Capt. J. L. Colegrove of So. Norwalk, Conn.; Mr. N. Colegrove of Greenup, Ky.; Rev. A. E. Colegrove of Millersburg, Ky.; Mr. L. Colegrove of Port Byron, Ill.; Prof. C. P. Colegrove of Nora Springs, Ioa.; Mr. J. Colegrove of Howard, Kan.; Mr. J. Colegrove of Clearwater, Minn.; Mr. A. Colegrove of Bradford, Pa.; Mr. C. Colegrove of Andover, N. Y.; Rev. I. Colegrove of North Edmeston, N. Y.;

Mr. H. B. Colegrove of Clinton, Wis.; Mr. A. Colegrove of Little Rock, Ark.; Mr. G. G. Colegrove of Painesville, O.; Mr. W. S. Colegrove of Osceola, Pa.; Mr. F. R. Colegrove of Utica, N. Y.; Mr. E. Colegrove of Cleveland, O.; Dr. W. E. Colegrove of Horseheads, N. Y.; Mr. J. A. Colegrove of Waukegan, Ill.; Capt. D. Colegrove of Stuyvesant, N. Y.; Dr. I. G. Cardner of New York City; Mrs. L. Broderick of Havana, N. Y.; Mrs. E. Foster of Fulton, N. Y.; Mrs. S. A. C. McArthur of Troy, N. Y.; Mrs. E. M. Denney of Ashland, Or.; Mrs. C. M. McCrossen of Hemlock Lake, N. Y.; Mrs. L. Ehrlich of Sciotoville, O.; Mrs. H. Fowler of Kingsville, O.; Miss A. S. Colegrove of Stony Point, Mich.; Miss M. C. Colegrove of Masonville, N. Y.; Mrs. C. K. Terry of Wilton, Ioa.; Mr. C. E. Colegrove of London, Ont.; and Edward Colegrave Esq. of London, Eng.

I wish to express the warmest feelings of kindness towards the whole circle of Kindred, and especially towards those whose acquaintance I have made either by personal interviews or by correspondence. It will always give me great pleasure to meet them, or to hear from them, and to know of their welfare. I wish also to urge all the friends to preserve with the utmost care their Family Records. W. C.

INTRODUCTION.

Most of the sons and grandsons of the founder of the Colegrove Family in America, going forth from the original seat in Rhode Island as bold and resolute Pioneers, plunged into that immense Forest and fearful Wilderness from which have grown the present States of Vermont, New York, and Pennsylvania, and were completely lost to those of their kindred who remained behind.

More than a hundred and fifty years have passed; and now a long and vigorous search has brought to light their descendants, scattered over the whole Country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to Texas.

They are found in small groups, widely separated, and each group usually supposing itself to constitute the whole Family, or nearly so.

Most of them have lost all knowledge of their origin; but some of them, having a sort of consciousness that they must have originated some way, have cherished and transmitted the wildest and most absurd traditions.

Family Records have been so neglected that very few can give the names of their Great-grandfathers; many do not know the names of their Grandfathers; and some can tell scarcely more than the names of their Fathers.

These circumstances alone were sufficient to make the search long and laborious; but these were by no means all the difficulties which had to be encountered.

There was great apathy in regard to the enterprise, and great backwardness in answering letters of inquiry.

It was often necessary to write three or four times to a person before any reply could be obtained; and in many cases none could be had at any rate.

Often, however, it was not mere apathy which prevented replies, but good and sufficient reasons.

In one case, having for a long time tried in vain to get a response from a man, I began to feel vexed, and to blame him severely; but when I learned that he had been dead five years, I felt very willing to excuse him! and still more so, if possible, in another similar case where the man had been dead eighty years!!

In fact I have been perfectly ready to excuse any correspondent who delayed for this reason, or for any other reason equivalent to this; and many have had reasons which were practically equivalent; as where one did not receive my letters at all, or, being old and infirm, he could not write himself, nor get any one to write for him; etc., etc.

TRAVELING.

Finding it impossible, however, in many cases to get the necessary information by writing, I resolved on personal interviews, and traveled some five thousand miles to visit the friends, and get the particulars which they were able to give. This method proved, in many respects, much more satisfactory than correspondence; but there were limitations to it. It was expensive and fatiguing. I could not visit all. To do so, I should have been obliged to travel more than a hundred thousand miles; and so I was compelled to fall back again upon correspondence.

RESPONSES.

Where answers were obtained, it was frequently after long delay. Weeks, months, and even years, elapsed before the answers came.

Again when the answers did come, they frequently failed to bring the information wanted. Sometimes they brought a part, and sometimes none of it. Almost always it was necessary to write several times to each person. The correspondence was heavy. During many previous years I had written numerous letters; and during the last four years, I have written about five hundred letters each year.

MYSTERIES.

Frequently the persons addressed were not able to give me any assistance. There were puzzling and mysterious questions which none of them could answer. Some of these questions have defied my utmost efforts at solution for many years,—some five, some ten, some twenty,—and some even forty years! At last, however, they have all been searched out except the cases of two or three persons who are supposed to have died many years ago, but whose fate is not certainly known.

CURIOSITIES.

Some curious coincidences have occurred. For example,—in the year 1861 three men, in three different and widely separated States, died,—each far away from his friends, and without their knowledge. In 1892,—thirty-one years afterwards, it devolved upon me to convey to a surviving brother of each of those men the first intelligence of his death.

Again, a man who is nearly as old as myself, sending me an account of his ancestry (taken from an old Family Bible), mentioned the name and residence of the Clergyman officiating at the marriage of his grandfather; and I was able to inform him that I was well acquainted with that Clergyman, having been born within five miles of his house. Of course my acquaintance with him occurred when I was a very young man, and he a very old one.—Many others might be given.

SATISFACTION.

Although the investigation has been long and laborious and expensive, yet it has been interesting, and in many ways has afforded pleasure. It has been full of pleasant surprises.

Information has often come when I was not looking for it, and from sources from which I least expected it. Also the facts, when they came, were frequently entirely different from what I had anticipated. Some were astonishing.

The search has made me acquainted with many previously unknown Cousins, who are now much loved and valued friends.

I have found pleasure in reporting to their near relatives the locations or the fate of those who had long been separated from them and lost to them. Cases of this kind have occurred where the friends had been lost for twenty, thirty, fifty,—and even seventy-five years!

Sometimes whole Clans of near relatives have been found whose very existence had never been known or suspected by their kindred. A certain young man, leaving his home, “went west”, and died early—unmarried, as was supposed; but he was actually married a short time before his death; a few months after his death a son was born to him, and was taken by his Widow along with her friends to another State still farther West. The child grew up, and is now an old man with a large family of children, and a host of grandchildren, none of whom had ever been heard of by their kindred in the East until I recently reported them!

SOURCES OF INFORMATION.

1.—In preparing this Work, the first source of information of course has been conversation with intelligent members of the Family,—especially the aged. My first informant was a great-granddaughter of the Patriarch,—had seen some at least, if not all of his children, and many of his grandchildren,—and had passed the whole of her long life within forty miles of his original residence in Warwick, Rhode Island. She was a sister of my grandfather, and a woman of much intelligence.

The material obtained from her more than fifty years ago, serving as a nucleus and ground work, has made this Work possible. She and all the rest of her generation have long since passed away; and if this record were now destroyed, it would be a perfectly hopeless task for any one to attempt to reproduce it.

2.—The next means of obtaining knowledge was correspondence with those with whom, on account of their distance, I could not converse.

Many of these, although sometimes slow to begin, have yet in the end responded nobly, and furnished a great mass of valuable matter,—often making elaborate investigations, and expending much time and labor upon their communications.

3.—The next resort was to Family Records preserved in Family Bibles, and sometimes in other books, or upon separate pieces of paper.

These, although comparatively few and scanty, have yet been of very great assistance.

4.—Besides these, much help has been obtained from Public Records of Townships, Counties, and States.

In some cases, where I could not go to make investigations in certain localities, I have employed others to go and investigate for me.

Some of the Cousins also have kindly assisted me by correspondence and otherwise, and have searched out some obscure matters which would have been difficult or impossible for me; and for this service I am very grateful.

5.—Newspapers, and the published Genealogies of other Families, have afforded some assistance,—as have also the Monuments of the Dead. A simple Epitaph has often furnished an important Date which could not otherwise have been determined.

6.—Through the kind assistance of friends in London, Eng., some valuable information has been obtained from the Herald's Office in that City. Also something has been gleaned from English Encyclopedias, and from other English books.

7.—Some important items have been gathered from Army Records and Pension Rolls.

8.—In some cases much has been learned from people not belonging to the Family, but who were acquainted with some members of it.

9.—Some assistance has been gained from the local State and County Histories.

10.—In some cases old Family Letters, long preserved, have proved of very great service.

11.—Many points have been ascertained from Directories.

12.—Much help has been afforded by Post Masters, who have usually been courteous and obliging; but two or three churlish fellows, either mistaking or pretending to mistake their instructions from the Government, have refused to give any information.

ERRORS.

It must of course be expected that some errors will occur in a Work of this kind. From the very nature of the case they cannot possibly be altogether avoided.

The utmost care has, however, been taken to make them as few as possible. In some cases my informants may have been mistaken. Even the Records are not infallible; and sometimes I may have misread the Records or the letters of correspondents; for the writing has not always been good. Sometimes too I may have committed blunders; but I hope that this has not often happened.

SPELLING OF THE NAME.

I have found it impracticable to vary the spelling according to the custom of each individual, but have uniformly used the original and correct form; and I earnestly wish that all who have departed from that form would as soon as possible return to it.

History of the Colegrove Family.

The Colegroves of America are of English descent. The name is supposed to be derived from a Grove on the little river Cole. This river forms the boundary for some distance between the Counties of Wiltshire and Berkshire, and is the most western of the southern tributaries of the Thames which are called Rivers. The grove was probably at or near the present town of Coleshill in Berkshire.

DATE OF THE ORIGIN.

It seems impossible to ascertain precisely the time when the name was adopted; but probably it was not less than five hundred, nor more than seven hundred, years ago.

It appears that Surnames were not much used in England until after the Conquest (in 1066), and that they were then introduced very gradually,—sometimes accidentally.

They were derived from personal peculiarities, occupations, localities, etc., etc. This name is from locality. Other names similarly derived are Hillgrove, Hartsgrove, Walgrove, Cowgrove, Lovegrove, etc.

THE COLEGROVES IN ENGLAND.

So far as known the principal and most ancient location of the Family in England is Woodstock in Oxfordshire, the seat of the Duke of Marlborough, and the residence of several English Kings. This place is about twenty miles from the mouth of the river Cole.

One of the Colegroves was an Aid de Camp to the first and very famous Duke of Marlborough; and either this or some other one was decorated with a Mural Crown for bravery at the storming of a certain Fortress,—he being the first to surmount the works of the enemy. The same man was afterwards Chief of Police of the City of London.

No Genealogy of the Colegroves, as far as I can learn, has been published in England; and the means of information concerning them are scanty; but it is known that some of them have lived in London for many years. In a list of English names that of one Sir Francis Colegrove has been noticed. About the year 1700 one William Colegrave, Esq. was the proprietor of the estate of Cann Hall, in Essex, near London; and his descendants still hold it, and also the estate of Little Ellingham in Norfolk.

One Colegrove is mentioned in an English publication as a Shakespearean Critic; and Mr. John B. Colegrove of Loughborough in Leicestershire is Head Master of the Grammar School.

CORRUPTION OF THE NAME.

Both in England and in this country there has been a tendency to corrupt the Name,—some writing it Colgrove, some Colegrave, some Colgrave, and some Coolgrove. This is very much to be regretted, and ought to be resisted. There is no doubt that our Patriarch, Francis, his sons, and his grandsons, wrote the name “Colegrove;” but some of his great-grandsons began to change it. The proper form is given in the Heraldry Books at Ottawa, Canada.

THE COAT OF ARMS.

The preceding Figure represents the Coat of Arms of one branch of the Family in England.

Of this the following is the Blazonry (explanation).

ARMS. Argent (white), two bars gemelle (a pair) between three pheons gules (red).

CREST. A mural crown Or (yellow). Thereon two arrows in saltire, sable (black), pheoned (pointed) argent.

The following Blazonry of the Coat of Arms of a younger branch of the Family was furnished by the Herald's College, London, England, in 1890.

ARMS. Arg., two bars Gu., each charged with as many crescents Or, between three pheons of the second.

CREST. An Ostrich-feather, erect, Az., and two Arrows in Saltire, Or, barbed and flighted Arg., banded by a Mural Crown, Gu.

MOTTO. Fidei Constans.

SEATS. Cann Hall, Essex, and Little Ellingham, Norfolk.

This branch is matrimonially allied with the Manbys, whose Pedigree, registered in the Herald's Office in London, extends back to the old Knight, Sir Petronellus de Manby of the time of Edward I.

The present proprietor of Cann Hall, and of Little Ellingham, is Thomas Manby-Colegrave, Esquire.

Personal courage is represented as characteristic of the race in England. One man says "No one ever knew a Colegrove to be afraid of anything."

COLEGROVES IN CANADA.

(See pp. 572-575.)

In 1860 Mr. Robert E. Colegrove came from London, England, and, after remaining a while in the United States, settled in London, Canada. He has a large family; and one of his sons is a business man in Chicago, Ill.

Two Nephews of Robert, one in 1887, and the other in 1890, came from England, and established themselves in Cleveland, Ohio.

COLEGROVES IN WALES.

About one hundred miles west from the mouth of the river Cole is the city of Swansea in Wales, at the upper extremity of the Peninsula of Gower; and there are indications that some of the Colegroves had long ago found their way to that place.

COLEGROVES IN THE UNITED STATES.

With the exception of those just mentioned in Chicago and Cleveland, the Colegroves in the United States are descended from Francis Colegrove, who came from London, Eng., to Warwick, Rhode Island, about the year 1683, or possibly as early as 1680. He was probably born at or near Swansea in Wales.

I first suspected, the Welsh descent from a little peculiarity of language in my Father's family.

I noticed that the common earth worms,—usually called angle-worms, and sometimes termed Easter-worms,—were in our family called angle-dogs, but not so by the neighbors.

I afterwards learned, that "angletouch" was a local name for worm in the little Peninsula of Gower in Wales. (See Latham's Eng. Language, p. 562.) Here was evidently the origin of the "angle-dog"; and I said "Our people then sprung from Wales."

Subsequently I found a distinct and positive tradition that our Ancestor, Francis, was born in Wales.

After that I recalled the historical fact that a company of Baptists came in 1663 from Swansea in Wales, and established the town of Swanzey in Massachusetts,—ten miles from Providence, R. I.,—supposing that place to be within the Colony founded by their Countryman, Roger Williams.

This seemed to afford a presumptive reason why the young Francis Colegrove, originally from Swansea in Wales, coming to America, should, as he did, settle some five miles from Providence, and perhaps ten miles from his compatriots at Swanzey, Mass.

Francis the Patriarch, as I find it convenient to call him, did not seem very patriarchal at first, being only sixteen years old when he came; and his means were evidently small, as he is said to have paid his passage by serving as Cabin-boy of the ship which brought him over.

He appears, however, to have been endowed with industry, enterprise, perseverance, and uprightnes; and these made him successful under most discouraging conditions.

He was married twice. By the first wife he had four sons; and by the second he had one son and two daughters (twins).

His oldest son at an early age lost his life in the service of his Country at the taking of Port Royal, Nova Scotia, in 1710,—leaving a widow and three little children; and thus he afforded the first of a long series of examples in the family annals of lives thus sacrificed, and of widows and tender orphans left to their pitiable fate.

One son remained in Rhode Island,—became a substantial citizen of much influence in his community, and trained up a large family.

The other three sons removed to what is now the State of New York,—as was said in those days “went up country”,—and became pioneer settlers.

Hence probably has arisen the tradition current in some places among our people (as in many other families) that originally “three brothers” of the name came from “the old Country”.

The twin Daughters were named Mary and Elizabeth. One of these, Elizabeth, was married to a man named John Williams; but concerning the other no record has been found.

Unfortunately it has hitherto been impossible to ascertain the name of either the first or second wife of Francis, except the pre-name of the second, which was Hannah. → Beaumont

THE TRIBES.

The Descendants, respectively, of the five sons of Francis,—Eli, Stephen, Francis, John, and William,—constitute what I have called the Five Tribes of the Family.

1.—The Tribe of Eli,—the smallest except one, is found mostly in the States of N. Y., Pa., and Mich. It is more largely represented in Tioga Co., Pa., than in any other single County.

2.—The Tribe of Stephen,—the largest,—has developed in R. I., Conn., Mass., Vt., N. Y., Pa., Ohio, Mich., Ind., Ill., Wis., Iowa, Kas., Neb., Ark., Or., Cal., and N. Dakota.

3.—The Tribe of Francis, the second in size, has spread largely in N. Y., Pa., Ind., Ohio, Ill., Ky., Mo., and Cal.

4.—The Tribe of John,—the third in size, has flourished in N. Y., Pa., Ohio, and Mich.

5.—The Tribe of William,—the smallest, is mostly confined to N. Y., Conn., N. J., Del., Iowa, Minn., and So. Dakota.

SCATTERING.

All of these Tribes are exceedingly scattered, so that usually only a few can be found in any one locality; but some have been traced to almost every State and Territory of the Union, and even to Canada, England, and Australia.

They have been found in forty-two of the sixty Counties in New York,—twenty Counties in Michigan, all the Counties in Rhode Island and Connecticut, many in Massachusetts, Vermont, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Iowa, etc., etc.

OCCUPATIONS.

The occupations of these people have been almost as diverse as their locations. The greater part of them of course have been Pioneers and Farmers; but a very large number have been Mechanics,—Carpenters, Cabinet-makers, Blacksmiths, Tinsmiths, Stonemasons, Printers, Clock-makers, Jewelers, Machinists, etc. Many have been Professional men,—Physicians, Surgeons, Lawyers, Clergymen, Teachers, Professors, Editors, Authors, Artists, Actors, Brokers, Land Agents, Musicians, etc. Some have been Merchants, Clerks, Salesmen, Agents, Contractors, Gardeners, Fruit-growers, Stock-raisers, and Dealers in Stock. Some have been Rail Road men,—Conductors, Engineers, Brakemen, Station Agents, Auditors, Telegraphers, etc. Many have been employed in Civil Offices,—Sheriffs, Magistrates, Judges, State Representatives, State Senators, Bank Commissioners, Mayors, Policemen, etc.

Very many have been in the Military service of the Country,—ranging in rank from Private to Brigadier General; but no one is known to have been a Soldier by Profession,—nor a professional Politician. A few have been Truckmen, Miners, Fishermen, and Common Laborers.

PECUNIARY CIRCUMSTANCES.

In respect to wealth the Colegoves mostly belong to the great Middle Class of society.

Although there has been great diversity of condition, they have generally been in comfortable circumstances;—a few have become rich; and a few have been very poor.

One in California was the lucky finder of a gold nugget worth some six thousand dollars,—but afterwards lost all the hard earned savings of twenty years through an adverse decision of the Courts in regard to the privileges of mining. Another is said to own one third of a Gold Mine for which ten millions of dollars have been offered. Another still is the owner of ten shares in a gold Mining Company,—which Shares he would be very glad to sell at a very small advance above zero!

NUMBERS.

Because some branches of the Family have become extinct, or have disappeared from certain localities, and because only a few of the name are usually found in one place, it has been supposed that the whole number is small, and that the Family is rapidly dying out.

This is a great mistake. The Family is numerous, and rapidly increasing. The Genealogy includes nearly two thousand descendants of Francis who were born Colegroves, besides more than one thousand Consorts (Husbands and Wives) from other Families; and of these more than one half are supposed to be now living. A Summary of Numbers, made from the Indexes, is given at page 40.

WONDERFUL TRADITIONS.

In the absence of available Records some remarkable and surprising traditions concerning the origin of the Family in this Country have sprung up.

One of them is that the Family has sprung from three French Pirates, who, becoming tired of their predatory life, landed in America, and became citizens!! This story has been gravely told to me by several who were men of intelligence in regard to other matters.

I suppose it must have grown up, like the famous story of the Three Black Crows, from the circumstance that the Patriarch Francis was the cabin boy of the ship.

Another tradition equally baseless makes the Family to be of Dutch or German descent.

NAMES OF PLACES.

Several places have taken their names from persons of our Family,—as the Village, Post Office, and R. R. station of Colegrove, McKean Co., Pa.;—a Post office of Los Angeles Co., California;—a place in White Co., Arkansas;—

another in Benton Co., Missouri;—and, probably, a certain R. R. station in Putnam Co., Florida; but in the case of “Colegrove by the Lake”, Hawthorne, Florida, the name was derived from an Orange Grove belonging to a Mr. Cole; and Coal Grove, in Lawrence Co., Ohio, is from a Grove near a Coal Mine. Colegrove Station, in Warren Co., Pa., should also be mentioned.

AFFINITIES.

The numerous families allied by marriage with the Colegroves are as good as any there are in the country.

Some Colegrove women have married men of distinction; and some have been the mothers of distinguished men. From the various alliances it has happened that some of the Colegroves have been near blood-relations of some very noted men,—as Roger Williams, the founder of Rhode Island; Captain John Mason, one of the founders of Connecticut; Gen. Warren, who fell at the battle of Bunker Hill; President Millard Fillmore; Hon. Salmon P. Chase; Governor Thomas Corwin of Ohio; Dr. Lyman Beecher; etc.

AFFLICTIONS.

Many and grievous afflictions have fallen upon various members of the Family. Whether these have been greater, or more numerous, than have occurred in other families is not easy to determine; but they are certainly sufficient to excite commiseration for those who have suffered.

One man of intelligence, refinement, and tender sympathies, had an interesting family of five sons and two daughters; and thus was he smitten:

First, one of the daughters died in early childhood. Then a son of twenty five years, very studious, and of great promise, died of cholera.

The same year the remaining daughter, beautiful, lovely, and of remarkable taste and skill, died on the very day which had been appointed for her marriage.

Next, another son in the bloom of early manhood, having gone to California, was murdered there for the gold he had obtained.

The next year died his wife, the mother of these children, who had for eighteen years been mostly confined to her bed with a lingering disease.

Then another son, a skillful workman, amiable, and greatly beloved by all his companions, died from wounds which he received in the army.

The next year another son, also in the army, died in consequence of exposure and hardships at Chancellorsville.

Then his favorite sister, seeing her husband buried in the earth by the caving in of a pit which he was excavating,—having neither help nor tools,—worked with her bare hands in removing the earth and stones that had fallen upon him until both skin and flesh were worn away, and the bones appeared; and all her efforts not availing to save his life, her reason failed; and she spent her remaining days a maniac.

This same man was himself a soldier in the War of 1812, and suffered great hardships from lack of provisions and otherwise while in the army. His company, whose term of enlistment had long since expired, having lived for three weeks on parched corn, and then having been entirely without food for three days, disbanded irregularly; and hence he was never able to obtain his Land Warrant as those did who had been regularly discharged.

Stricken and bereaved, the sorrowful old man passed the remnant of his days with his one remaining son.

In another case a widow saw eight of her children carried to their graves within three weeks from Diphtheria.

In still another case a man, having buried five of his children, was deserted by his wife, and swindled out of the most of his little hard earned property.

In a large number of cases families of young children have been made helpless orphans by the sudden deaths of their fathers in early manhood.

These children, poor, and without education, have found their lot in life a hard one. They are truly subjects for very great sympathy.

GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS.

1.—Differing widely among themselves in respect to natural ability and culture, the Colegroves are in general people of more than average intelligence and capacity; and hence in their various spheres they have usually been prominent leaders.

2.—They also manifest strong individuality of character, so that they are often called peculiar, and sometimes even eccentric. They are decided in their opinions, and maintain them with firmness. Usually quiet and unassuming, yet they have a desire, determination, and ability, to excel in something.

3.—They often manifest great versatility of talent, and are able to do many things. Hence they readily adapt themselves to circumstances, and frequently adapt the circumstances to themselves. Those who are Scholars are multifarious in their acquirements. It was formerly said of one who was a Teacher that he could teach more different subjects, and teach them well, than any other man in the Country. They are distinguished for great originality of thought, and are very self-reliant. Hence they have often devised and successfully accomplished undertakings which to others seemed utterly impossible.

4.—They are in most cases industrious, frugal, and enterprising. Most have been Pioneers in the clearing, settlement, and organization, of new towns and States. Always some of them have been upon the frontiers as the frontiers have advanced from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Some of them have developed very remarkable business ability.

5.—Physically they have been strong and vigorous,—many of them tall and graceful,—some of great beauty of form and countenance,—and a large proportion of them have been healthy and long-lived. No instances of extreme longevity have occurred among them; but many have lived more than ninety years, —and a much larger number from eighty to ninety. One of them has been said to have lived to the age of one hundred and two years; but the records show that he died at the age of ninety-one.

In stature many have ranged from six feet to six feet and four inches in height; though many of course have been much less than six feet.

In complexion etc., there is much diversity; but the prevailing type has been a fair skin, with dark hair and eyes,—either black or brown. Some have had red hair; and some have had blue eyes; some also grey eyes. In one very remarkable family seventeen children were born to one mother. One of these died in infancy; and of the surviving eight boys and eight girls, four boys and four girls had dark hair and eyes, but the other four boys and four girls had light hair and eyes! all but one of these lived to adult age; and nearly all of them are living now. (pp. 361, etc.)

6.—Morally these people have usually been upright, conscientious, and religious. The same diversity however is noticeable in their church preferences as in other departments. Some are found in almost every religious denomination; but probably there have been more in the Baptist Church than in any other.

They have generally been noted for sobriety; but this family, like every other, has suffered somewhat from the Alcoholic Fiend. Several have lost property, character, and life through intemperance. One of the brightest, most beautiful, most highly privileged, and most promising of the young men of forty years ago is now a miserable wreck from this cause.

7.—In like manner the Colegroves have been distributed among political Parties; but in respect to Patriotism there is found no diversity. They have universally manifested a strong love for their Country, and a readiness to engage in its service and defense. The first Colegrove born in America lost his life in his Country's service at the taking of Port Royal, Nova Scotia, in 1710; and since that time the family has been liberally represented in the Army in every War in which the country has been engaged. Many have thus sacrificed their lives; and others have suffered from toils, hardships, and wounds. During the Rebellion they seem to have been without exception loyal to the Union. Many of them were in the Union Armies, and did good service there; but, so far as can be ascertained, no one of them ever served in the Rebel Armies. It has been asserted that there was one in the rebel battalion called the Nansemond Cavalry; but a careful investigation has shown that such was not the fact; and I have no doubt that all such rumors are false.

8.—Scarcely any one of the race has ever been convicted, or even accused, of any sort of crime. No one of the Family has ever been arraigned for a capital offense.

A person called George Colegrove was formerly, about 1884, convicted of burglary and murder in Wisconsin, and is now serving out a life sentence in the Penitentiary of that State for the crime; but he is not a Colegrove at all. He was a wretched vile boy, who had been befriended and brought up by one of the Colegroves, but had been sent away; and he is supposed to have been returning for the purpose of murdering his benefactor, when he committed on the way the crime for which he is imprisoned. (pp 370 and 576).

9.—The family feeling is strong among all its members, although there has been a great neglect of Records and of mutual correspondence. Reunions on a large scale have not been practicable on account of the scattering; but a few very pleasant local ones have occurred; and some others are projected. I trust that they will become much larger and much more frequent.

10.—The art of Oratory has not been cultivated by very many of the family; but a few have attained a very considerable proficiency in it.

11.—The Poetical temperment and talent have been well developed in a considerable number; and some of them have written much excellent Poetry.

12.—A dignified deportment has been almost a universal characteristic of the family,—indicating a commendable thoughtfulness and self-respect.

13.—Finally it is evident that this family has had a share, and by no means an inconsiderable one, in the development of this great Country; and certainly the earnest hope may be allowed that its ever increasing influence may hereafter always be for good, and that its individual members may in all coming time be distinguished for virtue, honor, usefulness, and happiness.

No. Names in Indexes, 2772

Adding 125 Consorts whose names have not been ascertained, and also 126 children (most of whom died very young), we find the whole number of persons included in this work to be 3,023, besides those of the Canada Branch. This does not include the children of the Colegrove women who have gone into other families.

FAMILY RELICS, ETC.

Family Relics serve an admirable purpose in connecting the Present with the Past, and are extremely interesting to those who love the memory of their kindred. It would be well, if many more Relics were preserved and handed down from generation to generation. Our people have been too careless in regard to this; and hence the present enterprise has been more difficult than it would otherwise have been. The few things of this kind which are mentioned in the following pages have been of great service to the Author; and he has had frequent occasion to regret the loss of others which might easily have been saved, if their value had been appreciated. Family papers (Letters, Wills, Deeds, Etc.) ought to be kept for the benefit of future generations, and especially for the use of future Historians. Family Records, whether in Bibles or otherwise, should be made as complete as possible, and should be kept with the utmost care and diligence. The longer they are kept, the more valuable they become.

AN OLD LETTER.

The following Letter was written by the first Nathan Colegrove (a son of Stephen's. Francis, the Patriarch) from Middletown, Vermont, to his children (son Uri and wife) at Sullivan, Madison Co., N. Y. It is pathetic and full of Historic interest. The original is in the possession of Mr. Carroll D. Lansing of Perryville, N. Y., who is a great-grandson of Uri Colegrove, to whom the letter is addressed.

The letter is given unchanged in regard to spelling, capitals, etc., and considering the time and circumstances in which it was written, it is certainly a very creditable production. The Nathan and Calvin mentioned in the letter were sons of the writer. This Nathan lived at Fairfax, Vt.

Calvin afterwards settled near his brother Uri in N. Y., and died there while yet quite young.

It appears that the bereaved children came to Middletown according to their grandfather's invitation; and their mother found a refuge in the home of the younger Nathan.

Middletown, October 6th, 1807.

Loving Children:—

I now take this opportunity to write you hoping these few lines will find you in health as thru the goodness of God they leave us at present—I got home the thursday after I left your house and found my family all well and blessed be God for it.

I received your letter in which you informed me of John's death and it was heavy news to me and all the family—

Mr. Bigelo preached a funeral sermon on the occasion from these words in Ecclesiastes the seventh chapter and fourteenth verse—but in the days of adversity consider—and, it was a solemn time with us all—

Now my dear children let me exort you to see to it that your peace is made with God, let me pray you in Christ's stead be ye reconciled to God for if you are reconciled to God then because Christ lives ye shall live also—

I wrote you a letter dated 10th of September—Naffe got here this morning and informs me that the man that you sent the letter by informed you that we were coming after John's family which is not so for her conduct has been such here that there is not one of the family that would wish to have her come in amongst them, but the children must be taken care of, your mother says that she will take one of the girls and take care of it so long as she is able and Eathemy Fillmore says that he will take John and do by him as his own, and I expect that I can find a place for the other oldest girl and if the woman is willing that the children should come here [I wish] that you would write to me and Calven will come and bring the children and Calven says that he would be glad to have you make a market for one or two potash kettles and he will come and bring them. It is a sickly time here—Simon Prisby is dead and Elizabeth Blunt is dead and several sick with the fever. Mr. Jellet died the morning I came home. Nathan went from here on Monday last and our friends there are all well so no more at present but shall take leave to subscribe ourselves Your most loving and affectionate parents until death.

NATHAN, MIRIAM COLEGROVE.

This Miriam, wife of Nathan, was originally a Fillmore,—a sister (probably) to Eathemy Fillmore, and a great aunt to the President, Millard Fillmore.

Moreover the mother of this Nathan was a Millard, and also a near relation of Millard Fillmore.

AN OLD POWDER HORN.

Mr. Lester G. Colegrove of Plainfield, Will Co., Ill., has a large Powder Horn, wrought with much care and some skill, which formerly belonged to Stephen Colegrove of Foster, R. I., one of the sons of Francis, and father of the Nathan above mentioned. From the carving upon this Horn it appears that it was made for Stephen by a man in Lebanon, Conn., whose name is placed upon his work, with the date of its execution.

AN OLD CANE.

The Author of this Work has an old walking Cane which once belonged to his great-grandfather, Benjamin, a son of the Stephen mentioned above, and a soldier at the siege of Louisburgh in 1745. This Cane is quite unique. It is made of hickory, and has the appearance of having been carved out from a board. It is of one piece, but has a handle on one side, much like the handle of a jug. A knob from another piece is a modern addition to it.

AN OLD HOUSE.

In the town of Coventry, R. I., about a mile east, by the carriage road, from the village of Oneco in Conn., is the old house in which John Colegrove, son of the Stephen, and brother of the Nathan above mentioned, used to live.

This house is in a state of good preservation; and the interior of it remains almost exactly as it was when John occupied it. It has even now quite an imposing appearance; and when it was new, it must have been, for that time and place, a very superior house.

AN OLD CEMETERY.

Very near the village of Oneco, and not far from the State Line between Connecticut and Rhode Island, is an old Cemetery in which are buried the above named Stephen and John with their wives,—the wife of Jonathan, another son of Stephen,—and a considerable number of their descendants. It is rather probable that the Patriarch Francis is also buried there; but there is no monument to show it; and no one can be found who has any knowledge of the old graves without monuments.

It would seem a very fitting thing to do, if the descendants of the Patriarch should erect a Monument to his memory in this Cemetery.

The "Will" of Benjamin Colegrove.

(pp. 109 and 648).

I, Benjamin Colegrove of Voluntown in Windham County, and State of Connecticut, being in sound mind and memory, contemplating that it is appointed unto men once to die, and after death the Judgment, do make ordain and appoint this my last Will and Testament:

Item. First I give my sons Christopher and Benjamin Colegrove one hundred dollars each, to be paid to them within one year after my decease.

Item. Second. I give to my son Elisha Brown and his wife Thankful Brown the use and improvement of the farm where the said Brown lives during their natural lives, that is, as long as either of them shall live; and likewise I give my Daughter Thankful Brown all my household furniture, beds and bedding, and clothing and wearing apparel:

The remainder of my personal property, after paying my just debts and the cost of settling my Estate, I give to my sons Stephen and Eli Colegrove to be equally divided between them both; and at the decease of Elisha Brown and Thankful his wife I give the farm I now own to my four sons, Christopher, Benjamin, Stephen and Eli Colegrove, to be equally divided to them or their legal heirs; and lastely I constitute and appoint my son Stephen Colegrove Executor to this my last Will and Testament; in witness whereof I have hereonto set my hand and seal.

BENJAMIN COLEGROVE.

THE GENEALOGY.

This Genealogy is unusually complete and accurate; but still it is not to be supposed that every member of the Family has been discovered and located. If that were so, it would be almost a miraculous thing. It is certain, however, that the number of those omitted from the list must be very small. Some additional dates and other desirable points might be obtained if the Author had another fifty years of life and some other thousands of dollars to expend in the search; but under the actual circumstances the best has been done which could be done.

One who attempts to use the record should study carefully the explanations given on the next two pages before proceeding further. He should also observe especially that there is a separate Index of Names, and another of Consorts, for each of the five Tribes of the Family. Hence in looking for any particular name, if he does not know to which Tribe it belongs, it may be necessary for him to refer in succession to the several Indexes.

EXPLANATIONS.

1.—A separate page is assigned to each family and usually to each male over twenty one years old, unless he is known to have died unmarried.

2.—The children of each family are numbered, when possible, in the order of their ages.

3.—The figures in the lefthand margins, opposite names, refer to other pages where those names occur.

4.—The Roman Numerals mark the several Generations, counted from the Patriarch of the Family.

5.—If a copy of this Book shall come into the possession of any married man whose name is not carried forward from his parental page, he should carry it forward in manuscript to one of the blank page, left for that purpose between the Genealogy and the Biographies. In this way the record of any family may be extended indefinitely.

6.—The Biographical Sketches are placed in a group after the Genealogy, and with separate references.

7.—The following Abbreviations are used: b.-born; d.-died, or dead; m.-married; s.-son of, or son; dr.-daughter; ch.-child or children.

8.—The names are grouped by Tribes, Generations, and Families. The names of the Tribes are placed at the heads of the alternate pages. The Generations are marked by the Roman Numerals on each page; and those of the same Generation are placed on consecutive pages.

The names carried forward from each Family Group are also placed on consecutive pages.

9.—A General Index precedes, and an Index of Biographies follows, the Indexes of Names and Consorts.

A name given in the Index will not be found at the top of the page indicated, but in the list of children there. If the name occurs elsewhere, the figures in the margin will give the page.

10.—The Interrogation Point within Curves, (?), placed after dates, etc., implies some uncertainty.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES.

1.—FRANCIS COLEGROVE, p. 51

The materials for a Biography of the Patriarch are very meager. The greater part of the known facts in regard to his life have already been given at pages 23 to 26, 46 and 51.

He was evidently an active, enterprising, pioneer farmer, who attended to his own business and kept out of politics,—thus setting an excellent example—which has been followed by most of his decendants.

The death of his oldest son seems to have been a severe blow to him in respect to his business, compelling him to ask a little relief from the Legislature of the Colony,—which relief, it is pleasant to know, was readily granted.

The following is from the R. I. Colonial Records, V. 4, p. 136; “Proceedings of General Assembly held for the Colony of R. I. and Prov. Plantations at Newport, 27th February 1711-12.”

“Francis Colegrove petitioned for an abatement of the sum of £11. 18s. 4d., due from him to the Colony for land lately bought of the Colony’s Committee in the Narragansett Country, alleging that his eldest son, who was his chief help and support, being lately dead, in her Majesty’s service in behalf of this Colony, in the late expedition against Port Royal, whereby he is incapable to pay the same;— Wherefore, be it enacted by the Authority aforesaid that the said sum of £11, 18s, 4d, shall be, and is hereby remitted and given to the said Francis Colegrove.”

Notwithstanding his purchase of land in the “Narragansett Country,” he continued to reside in Warwick, and probably died there. No record of his death has been found; but circumstantial evidence indicates that he lived to be over 90 years of age. He was at least old enough to receive a visit from his great-grandson Reuben, p. 106; and Reuben was old enough to remember and report what he saw and heard during his visit.

It is a matter of regret that the search for the names of the two wives of Francis has thus far been unavailing.

He seems to have been married the first time at the age of about 25 years, and the second time at nearly 62 years.

It is easy to infer from what is known that he was a man of robust physical constitution, tall and comely. Also that he was a man of intelligence and good sense, and probably religious.

He is said to have been of a lively social disposition, and very fond of joking.

He sometimes claimed to be the first man who ever bore the name Colegrove. This, however, was probably a part of his joking. He seems not to have wished his relatives to be known. It is very possible that he left his home without the knowledge or consent of his parents, and did not wish to be traced. He cannot be allowed the honor of having been the first to wear the name.

2.—STEPHEN COLEGROVE, p. 105.

After the death of his brother Eli in 1710, Stephen was the oldest of the remaining sons of Francis, and the only one who made his permanent home in R. I.

He seems to have been a man of energy, of much dignity of character, and greatly respected.

He was married first in 1721, at the age of 26; and the name of his wife is said to have been Taylor. He appears to have lived for some time in the town of Providence, and was made a "Freeman of the Colony" in that town in 1737, having then perhaps first become the owner of real estate, and so qualified to be made a Freeman. He purchased land in the town of Scituate in 1754; but whether this was the first land which he owned in that town or not is uncertain. This land was located in that part of the Scituate which afterwards became the town of Foster; and upon it Stephen continued to reside during the remainder of his life. On the formation of the town of Foster, in 1781, at the first Town Meeting, held on the 19th and 23d of November, he was chosen Town Councilman.

In 1740 he married his second wife, Phoebe Millard, who belonged to a family which was connected with the Fillmores.

The mother of President Millard Fillmore was a Millard. One of the sons of Stephen Colegrove married a Fillmore; and one of his great-grandsons married another of them.

Stephen and his second wife, Phoebe, were buried in the old Cemetery at Oneco, Conn. His first wife may also have been buried there; but if so, there is no stone to mark her grave.

The descendants of Stephen by both marriages are numerous. His tribe is not only larger than any one of the other four, but is nearly as large as all of them combined.

One of the sons of Stephen married for his second wife a Corwin; one of his daughters married another; and one of his grand-daughters married still another of them. All of these Corwins were relatives of Governor Thomas Corwin of Ohio. Yet another Colegrove married a Corwin. See p. 455.

3.—BENJAMIN COLEGROVE, p. 109.

He was the fourth son of Stephen, p. 105, by his first wife; was married in Exeter, R. I., but was living at that time in Coventry, R. I. He afterwards lived in Westerly, R. I., and finally in Voluntown, Conn.

In 1745, being then 16 years old, he was in the military service, and was present at the taking of Louisburg, on Cape Breton Island, during that year (in King George's war).

In 1776 (in the war of the Revolution) he went from Westerly, R. I., to Stonington, Conn., to help repel the British, who were attacking that place. His son Stephen remembered seeing him talk with his wife a while, and then take down his gun and equipments, and start off. She then went into the house, sat down, and cried.

He also entered the service, Jan. 17, 1778, in Capt. Branch's Company of Col. Johnson's Regiment of Militia for the state of Conn., then serving in R. I., and was engaged for two months after he should reach the Camp. It seems that in the interval between 1776 and 1778 he had removed to Voluntown. He was buried in the private burying ground on his own farm. A copy of his will is given on p. 47.

4.—NATHAN COLEGROVE. p. 110.

This Nathan was the first son of Stephen (p. 105) by his second wife. He was born in R. I. but lived for a time in Norwich, Conn., and probably was married there. Some of his children were born there; and the Fillmores were a Norwich family.

Nathan is supposed to have gone from Norwich to Middletown, Conn., and thence to Middletown, Rutland Co., Vermont.

He was one of the pioneer settlers of that town, and continued until his death to be one of its principal and most respected citizens.

A letter written by him in 1807 to his son Uri and wife, at Sullivan, Madison Co., N. Y., is given at p. 43. From it one can hardly fail to form a very favorable estimate of his character.

5.—CAPT. JEREMIAH COLEGROVE.

This man is regarded as the principal founder of the very flourishing city of North Adams, in Mass. He is supposed to have gone there about 1780.

The Daily News of Troy, N. Y. in an Illustrated Extra, devoted to North Adams, and published in 1890, gives the following interesting items:

“In 1795 the principal land-owners of the North Village were Capt. Jeremiah Colegrove, Israel Jones, David Estes and David Darling.”

“The real prosperity of the Town had its birth in the introduction of the first machinery for carding wool, in 1801, when one carding-machine was put into Capt. Jeremiah Colegrove’s Grist-mill.” During the same year David Estes erected a mill for carding wool and dressing cloth.

“The Estes mill was operated by Roger Wing for about six years, when he was forced by the competition of Capt. Colegrove to seek other fields for his enterprise. Capt. Colegrove erected a two-story mill on the east bank of the south branch, where the Phoenix mill now stands, for wool carding, cloth fulling, and cloth dressing; and he successfully carried on the business for fifteen years, despite the energetic competition of David Estes, who succeeded Roger Wing in the River Street mill.”

“Capt. Colegrove was a man of extraordinary physical powers,—a giant in stature. He was clear-headed in business matters,—a good citizen,—generous and impulsive in matters that appealed to his heart. He was a champion of the weak and oppressed; and many incidents in his life illustrating his sturdy manhood and kindness of heart are still described by the few old residents who remember his colossal figure and boisterous hearty laugh.”

“On one occasion a fugitive slave woman, with bruised face, torn and bleeding feet, and in tattered dress, entered his mill in great distress, only a short distance ahead of her pursuers. There was barely time to stop the mill, secrete the fugitive in the water-wheel, lift the huge mill-stone from its bearings, and begin the operation of “dressing” the stone, when her pursuers, who had followed her from Hoo-sick, entered the mill and demanded their prey. They were permitted to search the mill, and departed without discovering her. She was then conducted into the upper story, where she remained until night, when Capt. Colegrove took her to his home, and by his coolness and bravery protected her for several years. The officers searched the Colegrove home once, and subsequently demanded the privilege of repeating the search, but were stoutly and indignantly refused by the Captain himself, who told them they could enter his house again only over his dead body.

Detecting something in the Captain’s manner that indicated danger, they departed, leaving him in possession of their prospective prey.”

“Capt. Colegrove was the father of Gen. Jeremiah Colegrove, who lived and died in the well remembered mansion on Main Street, and the grandfather of the late Francis F. Colegrove. whose lively wit, genial nature, and shrewd business tact, were a legitimate inheritance from such ancestry.”

“In 1810 was built the first Cotton Mill in the town. Benjamin Sibley (father of the late Hiram Sibley of Rochester, N. Y.), Capt. Jeremiah Colegrove, John Waterman, and others formed an incorporated company under the name of “The Adams North Village Cotton & Woolen Manufacturing Company,” and built the brick mill that, until about thirty years ago, stood at the foot of Center Street. Inspired by the success of the Cotton mills of R. I., these men, in the face of innumerable obstacles, built and successfully operated their mill.”

6.—STEPHEN COLEGROVE, p. 124.

Born in Westerly, R. I., he went at an early age with the family to Voluntown, Conn. There he grew up accustomed to the hard life of a farmer in a country not only new and rough, but exceedingly sterile and unproductive, far from any market, and with the worst possible roads. Of school privileges there were almost none.

After his marriage he lived some years in Canterbury, and then in Sterling, but returned at length to Voluntown, where he acquired a farm, built a house, and lived a long time.

The death of his wife, about 1832, was a terrible blow to him, from which he never recovered. He soon left his own house and went with his afflicted (with Epilepsy) daughter to live with his sister, Mrs. Brown. At length his daughter, his sister and her husband, died; and he passed the remainder of his days with his son Christopher—first in Lisbon, and finally in Voluntown again, where he was buried.

He was an extremely quiet and inoffensive man, of rather small stature, and singularly destitute of that practical judgement and mechanical ingenuity with which some of his children were largely endowed.

7.—URI COLEGROVE, p. 128.

This is the man to whom the old letter given at p. 43 was written. He was born in Norwich, Conn., and accompanied his parents when they removed to Middletown, Rutland Co., Vermont. From there he "went west," and on the 11th of February, 1796, he married Margaret Mitchell of Peterborough, N. H., in the town of Bridgewater, Oneida Co., N. Y.

He lived there a few years, then went to Cazenovia, and thence to Sullivan (now Lenox), Madison Co., N. Y., where he spent the most of his life. He died, however, in Erieville, Madison Co. He was a man of intelligence, and of much political influence,—a constant reader of the Albany Evening Journal.

Besides his own family of seven children, he brought up the two orphan children of his brother Calvin, who died while they were very young.

Uri died suddenly of heart disease at the age of seventy-two years.

8.—BELA HORTON COLEGROVE, M. D.,
p. 131.

It is said of him that he “was a man of splendid physical development, with a powerful constitution, fitting him for the arduous labors of his Profession.”

One who knew him well says of him; “He was a born Nobleman, in the only true sense of the word. More than six feet in height, of grand majestic bearing, a polished gentleman, a christian, full of energy in the practice of his Profession, amiable and gentle as a child, courageous and fearless in the performance of duty, with no fear before his eyes but the fear of God, self-educated, possessed of entire self-reliance, and, as a Surgeon, with no superior in those arts and sciences which he cultivated, he was the most admirable man that I have ever met in an experience among men that has been extensive during a period of more than forty years.”

Prof. Austin Flint, and Prof. Frank Hamilton of New York City have both testified of his greatness.

He was born in Coventry, R. I., a very short distance from the Conn. State Line. His father was a plain farmer who seems to have been highly esteemed and honored by his neighbors.

His mother was a woman of sense and piety, and with an earnest affection for her only son.

Bela H., at the age of fourteen years, taught a winter school in his native town, and followed the same business four winters in succession—the last two as assistant in a high school in Sterling, Conn. With the means thus obtained he was able to attend for three summers the Academy at Plainfield, Conn. Afterwards he became the pupil of Rev. Isaac Bliss Pierce, who taught a small company of private students in North Kingston, R. I.

In 1817, at the age of nineteen, he entered the office of Dr. Thomas Hubbard of Pomfret, Conn., to study medicine.

Dr. Hubbard was a remarkable man. Of noble figure, intelligent and handsome features, tireless energy, and earnest zeal in his profession, he attained great eminence, and at length became Professor of Surgery in Yale College.

Young Colegrove greatly admired his instructor, and says that his choice of a profession was determined to a large extent by the noble, majestic, almost pained, look and bearing of this man. Among the fellow students of Colegrove in Dr. Hubbard's office was the afterwards famous Dr. George McClellan of Woolstock, Conn., the father of Gen. George B. McClellan of Antietam fame.

During the next winter Bela H. was a member of the Medical Class at Yale College, and sat under the instruction of Drs. Benjamin Silliman, Nathan Smith, Eli Ives and Jonathan Knight. After the Course of Lectures he returned to Dr. Hubbard's Office for the summer, and the next winter attended Lectures at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. At the close of that Course of Lectures he repaired to New York, and, passing an examination, before the College of Physicians and Surgeons, embracing Drs. David Hosack, Valentine Mott, Wright Post, John W. Francis, Samuel L. Mitchell, and others, he received the Degree of M. D.

After obtaining his Degree he returned to Coventry, being unwilling to leave his Mother in her declining years; but she soon died. A letter of invitation from Major Elihu Rice induced him to visit a then sparsely settled region in western N. Y. Setting out with a horse and buggy and a limited stock of medicines, after a journey of twenty-one days, he reached Sardinia on the 4th of July, 1820.

Hardly had his foot touched the ground before he had a "call"; and for weeks he was not allowed more than a casual and scanty repose. The growing patronage of the people, the continually enlarging circle of his ride, a gratifying measure of professional success, and the openly expressed wish on every hand that he should remain, finally determined the newcomer to establish his home in what was then a comparative wilderness.

Everything around was rough, simple and primitive. The uneven roads were constantly flanked on each hand with huge stumps which it was a matter of difficulty to avoid in the darkness of night. Rude log-cabins fronted the clearings which were opened here and there in the forest, indicating the beginnings of civilization in those primitive solitudes. Ten years had elapsed since the first settler had arrived; but thus far the struggle with hardship and poverty had served at best to gain merely the comforts, but none of the luxuries of life. For five or six years the Doctor made his professional visits on horse-back, the roads being too rough and dangerous for wheeled vehicles especially at night; but remarkable success in the treatment of some very difficult surgical cases soon laid the foundation for an extensive practice and a very enviable reputation

Somewhat exaggerated reports of his operations sometimes gained currency. Having at one time treated a man whose skull had been broken, the Doctor soon passed a night at a Hotel in Olean, and overheard a conversation something like this: "How is John getting along?" says A. "No great change, I believe." says B. "Well", says A., "why don't they send for this new Doctor up here?" B. "Why, what has he done? A. (indignantly) "What has he done! Why, don't you know that he took out a man's brains,—put 'em on a platter, and washed out the bark and splinters,—and then put 'em back again; and the man got well and tough as ever again?" B. "Well aint that rather a tough story, though?" A. (waxing warm) "See here, don't you suppose I know what I am talking about? Don't people know that saw the Doctor do it? I guess you had better just post yourself a little, and not make a fool of yourself by disputing the plain facts of the case."!!

The Doctor was a member of the Medical Society of his County for more than fifty years; and his remarkable successes were cheerfully acknowledged by his professional brethren.

These successes were due not only to the thoroughness with which he had studied his Profession, but also largely to his courage, sagacity, decision, steadiness of nerve, and great bodily strength. He generally performed his operations without the aid of either assistants, or the mechanical helps frequently used by other Surgeons. He had a special facility in extemporizing simple and effective means to meet the demands of every emergency.

A feeling of gratitude for his happy disposal of a difficult case once turned to his advantage. He had lost on the road his Wallet containing a hundred dollars; and starting back to look for it, he met his former patient and inquired whether he had found it. The man immediately gave it up, and then told him that he had been tempted to keep it; "and, said he, "if it had been any other man, I should have kept it; but I could not take it from the man who set my shoulder."

The labors of the Dr. in his large practice were almost Herculean. His ride embraced large portions of the Counties of Erie, Cattaraugus, Wyoming, and Allegany, in N. Y., as well as a considerable territory in northwestern Pa.

With mud, and rain, and sleet, and snow, and wind, and hail, and darkness, and gloom, —with bridgless torrents, and high piled drifts, and stinging mid-night winter cold,—with the elements and forces of nature in every season and in every degree, the hard-working pioneer Physician in the country forms no doubtful or distant acquaintance; and the Doctor's experience was no exception to the general rule.

Few men have had narrower escapes from death, or discerned more frequently and clearly the special protecting hand of Providence in times of peril. He was a firm believer in the doctrine of Divine providences, and cordially and publicly professed his faith, with illustrations of the truth in numerous facts of his own experience.

Although never, properly speaking, a politician, yet for many years he exerted a large political influence in his part of the state. He was repeatedly chosen Supervisor of the Town, —in 1842 was elected to the State Legislature, —and served for five years as assistant County Judge.

He was a friend and admirer of DeWitt Clinton; and there is a report that he was a candidate for the United States Senate in opposition to Silas Wright,—lacking only two votes of being elected. He never, however, regarded political preferments as especially desirable, insisting on his professional labor and success alone as the foundation for any distinction he ever enjoyed, and as the source of honorable gratification in the retrospect.

He was a man of strong religious convictions,—for more than forty years a member of the Baptist Church in Sardinia,—and always remembered among his most warmly esteemed friends the well known Rev. Whitman Metcalf.

He was eminently social and genial in his disposition, and was accustomed to give to his numerous friends a greeting unaffectedly cordial. He was fond of Poetry, and able to repeat paragraphs and pages from his favorite Authors. He was especially honored and beloved by his own children, who fondly cherish and revere his memory.

9—JONATHAN COLEGROVE, p. 133.

Being married in Griswold, Conn., he immediately removed with a Colony from Norwich, Conn. to Norwich, Chenango Co., N. Y., where he lived until 1815. Then with a Company from that place he went to Pa., and founded the Settlement of Norwich, in McKean Co., in that state. There he made his home during the remainder of his life.

He served for a while as a Lieutenant at Sackett's Harbor in the War of 1812, but was discharged on account of ill health. For some years he taught School during the winters, and worked at Farming and Surveying during the summers. He was one of the first County Commissioners of McKean Co. after its organization, and served as Treasurer of the County and State Representative, one term each.

He was the first Post Master at Norwich, Pa., and held the Office many years. He was Agent for the great Land Estate of J. Ridgeway, and also for J. J. Ridgeway, from 1817 to 1852, when he retired from active life.

He was a man of great energy and business capacity, and of the strictest integrity. The Post Office and the Village of Colegrove, Pa. are named from him. The place is now a famous R. R. Station and Oil Depot.

10—CALEB COLEGROVE, p. 139.

Born in Otsego Co., N. Y., he went to Otselic, Chenango Co., and then to Pompey, Onondaga Co., where he remained a long time. He afterwards lived in several places, but finally died near Jefferson, Green Co., Iowa.

He was a man remarkable for his virtues, and for the afflictions which he endured (p. 32) With a tall and graceful figure, a noble and pleasing countenance, a charming dignity and suavity of manners, a gentle simplicity, christian sincerety, and genuine benevolence of character, he was not only highly respected, but greatly beloved by those who knew him.

“There was a patient sweetness in his face that told its own story to strangers. He had that old-fashioned stately, courtly way about him that, when he was among strangers, they recognized his real worth. It was his beautiful inner life that made him what he was. His courtly manners were not studied. He lived for God and humanity, and was one of Nature’s noblemen. The room always seemed brighter when he was in it.”

In his younger days he served in the Army during the War of 1812, in the Regiment of Col. Stranahan.

He and his brother Stephen, Joseph Hopkins, a cousin of theirs, and several others, being discharged at Sackett's Harbor, near night, without provisions, and having had nothing to eat for three days, were told to take care for themselves.

They started on foot for their home in Otsego Co., something more than a hundred miles, and much of the way through a rough wilderness. After a while, coming to a farm house, they found a man boiling some potatoes for his hogs.

They tried to buy the potatoes; but he would not sell them, and abused the men. They then took the potatoes by force, and partially satisfied their hunger. Proceeding then until it was late, they came to a log-house Tavern.

Here they stopped for the night, and called for supper; but the land-lady told them that she had nothing in the house to eat. Her husband, however, had gone to mill, and she expected him home during the night. She had also some cider in the cellar. The men therefore took some cider and went to bed. During the night the husband came with some meal; and so they had something for breakfast.

Their sufferings were extreme before they reached their homes. The ground was frozen; and before they reached Edmeston the shoes of Hopkins failed; his stockings were worn out; and the blood from his lacerated feet marked the ground at every step. When he was twenty miles from home, he was obliged to stop; but the others went on and reported his case to his friends. Thereupon his uncle, Peleg Davis, went for him with a wagon.

11.—GEORGE B. COLEGROVE, p. 146.

Very little material for a Biography has been found, although carefully sought. He was born in Guilford, Vt; and at the age of 15 years he enlisted in the 102nd N. Y. Regt., in which he served 4 years. He lived in Augusta, Me.; but after the death of his Wife and Daughter, he seems to have left the city for a while, returning about 1889. During some part of this interval he is supposed to have been in Michigan. The following is from "The New Age", June 2nd, 1892. "Wednesday afternoon George B. Colegrove, the painter employed in painting the Bridge, was instantly killed by falling from the top cord of the center span, a distance of thirty-five feet. He was putting up a swinging ladder stage, which gave way; and he fell to the bridge below, striking on his head and shoulders. His neck was broken; and he died almost instantly. Mr. Colegrove has been in Augusta about three years, and was forty-seven years old. He was a member of the Grand Army and an Odd Fellow."

He was a good workman and a man of great agility and daring. He was baptised by Rev. Walker Gwynne of Saint Mark's Church a few weeks before his death.

12.—CHRISTOPHER COLEGROVE, p. 156.

This man was born in Voluntown, Windham Co., Conn., which was at that time almost a wilderness. A part of the years of his childhood and youth were spent in Canterbury and Sterling where his father rented farms. He enjoyed the advantage of the Common Schools to some extent, and attended for a while the Academy at Plainfield, at the head of which was the somewhat noted Prof. Burleigh,—the father of the famous quartette of brothers, all of whom were Poets, Orators, and Reformers.

Christopher at an early age became a Teacher of Common Schools. He also studied Music, taught Singing Schools, led Choirs in the Churches, and played the Clarionet in a Military Band,—winning some distinction.

At the age of twenty-two he was married, and settled down in Lisbon, New London Co., Conn., upon a little farm, of which his wife was the Heiress; and there he remained nearly thirty years. He soon attracted some attention in his new home, and became one of the prominent citizens,—generally holding some public office. He enlarged the little farm by the purchase of some adjoining land; and he also bought a small homestead at a little distance, which he rented.

He was often the School Committe for his District, and a member of the board of School Examiners for his part of the Town. Once he taught the Public School during the winter. He was a prominent and active member of the Baptist Church. He was also for one term a member of the State Legislature.

He had an aptitude for mechanical work, and was a good Carpenter. As there was an excellent Stone Quarry upon the farm, he turned his attention to that, and became a good Quarry-man and Stone-cutter. The absence, however, of good roads, and the consequent great expense of hauling the stone to market, made the Quarry of little value.

His first wife died in 1837; and two years later he married again. About 1850 he sold out the property in Lisbon, and removed to Voluntown, where he obtained the old farm upon which his Grandfather had lived. This, by overcoming the natural sterility of the soil, he made productive; and he cut off and marketed the valuable pine and cedar timber covered a part of the land. He also obtained another old farm, which his father had owned.

During this portion of his life he held the offices of Justice of the Peace, Grand Juror, and Bank Commissioner.

His second wife died in 1879; his two younger daughters married and left the paternal home; he met with some pecuniary losses; and at length, being over eighty years of age, he went to New London, Conn., and spent his last years with his oldest daughter, Mrs. Baldwin.

He was a very busy, industrious man,—was fond of reading,—was of much more than usual intelligence,—and was a man of sterling integrity.

Physically he was well formed and graceful,—full six feet in height,—of great bodily strength,—of noble countenance,—and with a finely developed head; but he did not enjoy good health.

As a Magistrate his decisions were highly respected, even by the superior Courts, and were scarcely ever reversed. Although making no pretensions as an orator, he was yet a rather fluent and effective public speaker.

Notwithstanding his abilities he was diffident and retiring, never pushing himself forward into prominent positions. He was a little younger than his friend and cousin, Dr. Bela H. Colegrove of Sardinia, N. Y. In their younger days they looked very much alike; and in many points they were similar in character and natural endowments.

13.—ELI STILLMAN COLEGROVE, p. 158.

He was a Seventh Day Baptist, and a leading man in the community where he lived. He was radical and outspoken in regard to Temperance, Anti-slavery, etc., active and prudent in business,—a Major in the Militia,—a very able man, and universally respected.

He was the father of Orson Rodolphus, mentioned on the next page.

ORSON RODOLPHUS COLEGROVE, p. 158

This was a man of great activity and enterprise. He served as Major of the 3d N. Y. Cavalry, under Burnside, in the Carolinas. After the War, he with two of his brothers returned to the South. He became Sheriff of Jones Co., N. C. and attempted to discharge with faithfulness the duties of the Office; but while taking some prisoners to the County Seat for trial, he was waylaid by the Ku Klux ruffians, and shot down. By a single volley he and his horse and a servant who was with him were killed. Nineteen bullets pierced his body; and the wads from the guns set fire to his clothes. This occurred on May 29, 1869.

In answer to a letter of inquiry in 1890, a citizen of Newberne, N. C., replied as follows: "During the reconstruction period through which the poor unfortunate South had to pass, a Mr. Colegrove was Sheriff of Jones Co. for a short time. He left here about 1870, and returned North. I presume he was a northern man."

It is presumed that this gentleman forgot to mention the trifling circumstance that the Sheriff had nineteen bullet holes in his body when he "returned North."

15.—URI CLINTON COLEGROVE, p. 168.

This man was educated at Cazenovia Seminary, Madison Co., N. Y. He went to Giles Co., Tenn., and married there in 1847.

He then became a planter, and continued such until the close of the War. Being financially ruined by the Emancipation Proclamation, he went to Texas, and became an Insurance Agent. His first wife died in Tenn.; and he married again in Texas. Not long before his death in 1890 he made a visit to his former friends in the North.

In the South he spelled his name Coolgrove; and a School in Tennessee is named from him "Coolgrove Academy."

His widow was stricken with Paralysis in 1890.

16.—BELA H. COLEGROVE, Esq., p. 169.

This nephew and namesake of the distinguished Surgeon was born in Pomfret Conn., and was a young man of great ability and promise. Having noble aspirations, he found means to take a thorough course of study, and graduated at Yale College in 1849, being the second of the Colegroves to make such an honorable achievement.

As a Student he was admirable in his deportment, and was almost a perfect model of manly strength, beauty and gracefulness. Affable, courteous, and amiable, he won the hearts of those who were favored with his acquaintance.

After his graduation he studied Law, and went into the practice of it in Buffalo, N. Y. Remaining there until 1873, he gave up his practice, went to Kentucky, and engaged in Stock Farming, which he still continues.

17—DE WITT CLINTON COLEGROVE,
p. 170.

This man is usually known as Clinton Colegrove,—he having dropped the cumbersome “De Witt” from his name.

He is the oldest of the children of Dr. Bela H., p. 131, and was born in Sardinia, N. Y. He pursued his studies at Madison University, at Hamilton, N. Y., and also at Brown University, Providence, R. I., but did not graduate on account of failing health. He became a Physician, and practised at Fredonia, Chautauqua Co., N. Y., where he was married, and lived for many years.

At length from conscientious motives he relinquished his practice, and became a Baptist Minister. Afterwards, finding his views not in harmony with those of his Denomination, he left the Baptists, and affiliated with the Adventists, preaching and lecturing some, and writing much for the Religious papers. After the death of his wife he traveled a while,—then married again, and lived for several years at Westfield, Mass.

He has been much engaged in literary work (not Novel writing), especially in the preparation of a critical and annotated edition of the Bible, a work of great labor.

In 1892 he returned to the region in which he spent his early years, and now resides in Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., where he is engaged in a new department of Medical Practice,—a special application of Electricity to the cure of diseases.

He is a very diffident retiring man, of extreme sensibility,—shrinking from everything like ostentation or display, and from many of those methods of business which are by some thought to be legitimate.

He is of a poetical temperament, a lover of poetry, and a poet of considerable ability. He is genial and affable in his manners, pleasant and interesting in conversation, and of great benevolence and kindness of heart. He is a man of solid worth, but not appreciated by the great unthinking multitude, who cannot comprehend him.

18.—JAMES BARRETT COLEGROVE,
p. 171.

This is a man who is widely known. He is the second son of Dr. B. H. Colegrove (p. 131), and was born in Sardinia, N. Y.

He graduated at Madison University, and became a Physician and Surgeon of some celebrity. For four years he was a Chief Surgeon in the Army, and had charge of the large Military Hospital at St. Louis. Afterwards he did something at Manufacturing in the State of Missouri. Still later he engaged in business in Wall Street, N. Y. Soon, however, leaving that, he became a Mail Contractor, managing some thirty thousand miles of Mail Routes. More recently he has established a large number of Steamboat Routes, and his business has been enormously extended.

He has developed a wonderful capacity for business; but still he has not been absorbed by his business enterprises as some men are. He is one of the main pillars of the Baptist Church in Washington, D. C., of which he is a member.

He is also the organizer and manager of the Choir, to which he devotes much time and expense. He has a fine musical taste, and is satisfied with nothing short of the highest excellence. He owns a fine residence on 15th st. which is filled with choice Paintings, the work of his artist wife.

18.—GRORDIS PARK COLEGROVE, p. 175

This man, for a plain farmer, has seen a good many vicissitudes in life. He was born in Fabius, Onondaga Co., N. Y.; but before he was one year old the family moved to Potato Creek, McKean Co., Pa., where he lived until he was nine years old. He then went to live with a married sister some 20 miles away at Kendall Creek,—a lonely place in the woods, the nearest neighbor in one direction being three miles away, and in the other direction, ten miles. Here he spent three years, becoming familiar with the sight of wild deer, wolves, bears, and panthers,—and sometimes catching speckled trout in his hands without a hook. Of course there was no School there. At length his brother-in-law moved to Orleans Co., N. Y.; and there for four years he went to school some, and worked on the farm more.

The family next moved to Camden, O., and remained two years; and his life was nearly the same, except that he became interested in religion. In 1841 they removed to Somerset, Hillsdale Co., Mich., where he led the life of a pioneer for several years. In 1844 he went to Pa to visit his parents,—the first time in ten years.

On the fourth of December he started for Hanover, Jackson Co., Mich., and walked 414 miles in eleven days.

He now obtained 40 acres of land, and worked upon that until 1847. He then again visited his friends in Pa. for a few months, and returning to Mich., was sick for several months. In 1848 he was married; and for a number of years he lived upon various farms, some bought, and some rented, and built three or four houses. In 1877 he bought a house and lot in the village of Hanover, and lived there; but the next year the house was burned; and he went back to his farm. Soon, however he built a new house, and moved back to town. He then sold his farm, visited friends in Pa. and N. Y., and then bought the farm at Stony Point on which he now lives.

Of his thirteen children seven are now living; and they are a very intelligent and interesting family. Two of the sons are farmers; but the third is a Preacher. One of the daughters married a farmer; and the other three daughters, not yet married, are Artists of much taste and ability.

One of them is a Teacher in the city of Jackson. The whole family are genial and friendly. In respect to religion, all are Universalists.

20—WILLIAM J. COLEGROVE, p. 177,

This man was one of the noblest of nature's noblemen, honored and beloved most by those who knew him best, and wept for with sincere regret even by those who were comparatively strangers to him. He was a man devoted to his church and the principles of the Christian religion.

He died from the effects of a recent stroke of paralysis, and the news brought sudden and overwhelming grief.

He was born in Norwich, McKean Co., Pa., and was educated partly in the common schools, and partly in the Smethport Academy. He was married in 1841, and continued to live on the old homestead farm in Norwich until 1880, teaching in the winter for several years. In 1852 he succeeded his father (p. 663) in the Land Office Business, and thereafter had the exclusive control of the forty thousand acres of land embraced in the Ridgeway estate,—being authorized to sell, collect, and make titles, without restriction. This continued until the time of his death (forty years).

He was elected Justice of the Peace in 1842; also served two years as Commissioner of McKean Co., and was a member of the Board during the erection of the present Court House which was begun and completed during his term from 1879 to 1881 inclusive. He was instrumental in creating a new Post Office at Colegrove, and was Post Master there until 1880. He also served part of a term as Sheriff of McKean Co. He joined the M. E. Church in 1836, and held in it every possible official relation. He was a Class-leader fifty-five years; a Steward fifty-one years; a S. S. Superintendent nearly twenty-five years; and President of the Board of Trustees nearly twelve years. To all Church interests he was devoted, loyal, and useful. At his death he left property to the amount of a hundred thousand dollars.

21.—REV. MAGER COLEGROVE, p. 198.

The Corry (Pa.) Weekly Herald of Feb. 2, 1893 contained the following:—"Rev. M. Colegrove had a stroke of apoplexy Friday morning (Jan. 27, 1893), resulting in paralysis. . . . This sad intelligence of his affliction will greatly shock this community where Mr. Colegrove has lived so many years, and held a high place in public esteem. He is one of the oldest residents of this section, and throughout his long life has maintained a high character."

He died the same day; and the announcement proved a terrible shock not only to those in that community, but to some far away from there, including the present writer.

Our friend was born in Edmeston, Otsego Co., N. Y., and lived there till the years of early manhood, when his father removed with his family to Pa. They settled upon a tract of land through which runs the line separating Erie and Warren Counties. This tract with subsequent purchases has since been occupied by the members of the family and their descendants. They have proved thrifty and honorable citizens.

Mr. C. received what in his day was considered a very good education, and throughout his life was a warm friend of learning. At the age of 18 years he began life as a Teacher in Otsego Co., N. Y. where he taught several terms.

He also taught some years in the vicinity of Corry, at one time conducting a school of over a hundred pupils in the village of Columbus.

While quite young he joined the M. E. Church, and soon was licensed as an Exhorter, then became a Local Preacher, and finally a Traveling Preacher or Circuit Rider.

He served as a member of the School Board of Corry for two or three terms, being successively President & Secretary of the Board. This is the only public Office he ever held. Since his death one of his four surviving brothers (Lawrence) has followed him to the grave.

While yet living he had the satisfaction of seeing his three sons, whom he had carefully educated, become honored and useful citizens,—all attaining distinction in their several departments.

He was the owner of a farm near Corry, upon which he lived until near the time of his death.

22.—ISAAC COLEGROVE, p. 199

This namesake of his father began life as a farmer, but soon added other occupations. He has been largely engaged in public affairs, and has been popular among his fellow citizens. He was Tax Collector for many years, and was several times a member of the City Council.

He was also Mayor of the city of Corry for three years, and has otherwise been largely connected with the business of the city. He has recently, like very many others in all parts of the country, met with severe pecuniary reverses.

He has been married twice, but has no children.

23.—LEVI COLEGROVE, p. 208.

This extensive traveler was born in Guilford, Vt., and was brought up by his grandfather Solomon Andrews.

In 1848 he went to New Bedford, Mass., & worked for some time at ship-building. He then shipped on board a Spermwhaler bound for the Pacific Ocean. He continued on this ship 33 months as Carpenter's Mate; but coming to one of the Samoan (Navigators') Islands, he left the ship, and remained two years upon the Island, engaged in Boat-building and Ship-building. He then went to Australia, where he married, and remained twelve years, living in or near Sydney.

He then brought his family to Massachusetts, remained a month with his mother at Chicopee, and then passed on to Caldwell Co., Missouri, where he lived about twelve years.

In 1882 he went to Dakota. The first winter he and his son James lived in a tent & hunted Buffaloes, killing over a hundred of them. The next winter they hunted Deer, and killed over two hundred of them.

He now (1893) lives upon a Cattle Ranch at Lime Butte, Hettinger Co., N. Dakota,—about 30 miles from Dickinson, Stark Co. Post Office at Dickinson.

24.—WILLIAM COLEGROVE, p. 234.

This William was born in Lisbon, New London Co., Conn., and was the oldest of a family of eleven children.

His father owned and cultivated a small farm; and the early years of the boy were passed as those of other boys in like circumstances. At the age of four years he was sent to the district school, about a mile distant; and for ten years he attended that school (not very regular) about three months in each year, except one year when his father was sick, and he was detained at home.

He learned easily; but the teachers were mostly poor; & if he had not received instruction at home he would have made very little progress. He soon developed a love for knowledge and books,—became fond of reading,—read all the books at home,—then borrowed books from the neighbors,—and devoted to them most of his leisure time. A part of the first money which he was able to earn for himself was spent for books (and that has happened with almost all that he has earned since).

One of the books which fell into his hands at this period was Dr. Dick's work on "The Improvement of Society by the Diffusion of Useful Knowledge". It was read with intense interest, and produced a strong and lasting impression upon his mind. It had much effect in determining his taste, character, and pursuits. His reading during his boyhood embraced books of History, Biography, Natural Philosophy, Chemistry, the Laws of his native State, the Bible, a Bible Dictionary, Sunday School Books, Novels Newspapers, Etc.

In a Biography of Washington he found a Latin quotation from Horace (1st stanza of Ode 3, Book 3), consisting of several lines, and left without a translation. He was anxious to know the meaning of the lines, but could find no one able to give him any help. Hence he copied the Verses, and determined to keep them until he should himself be able to translate them. This purpose he carried out, although he had to keep them a number of years.

At the age of thirteen years he was deprived by death of his most excellent mother. The next year he attended a Select School for a short time, and also a singing school.

During the winter after he was fifteen years old he taught a District School in the town of Franklin, Conn., where he became acquainted with the somewhat eminent Rev. Dr. Nott, a brother of President Nott of Union College at Schenectady, N. Y.,—and also with the remarkable Smith family, one of the younger members of which, the late Mr. Roswell Smith, was the founder of the Century Magazine.

At the close of his school of five months he returned to the paternal farm, and the next year made a similar alternation. After that, however, he either taught both winter and summer, or taught in the winter and attended school in the summer for several years. He taught in various places in Conn. and R. I., and on Long Island, N. Y.

In connection with his teaching he established, and persistently followed up, a course of private study, and was at length fitted to enter College; but circumstances made that impracticable; and he determined to complete the College course by himself. At the age of twenty-two years he was married to Miss Catharine Waterman of Warwick, R. I., a lineal descendant of Roger Williams, and a lady of great skill in Drawing and Painting. From this time he was mostly engaged in teaching and studying. On a few occasions he tried some Agency work; but he soon left it because to his retiring and sensitative nature he found it intolerably irksome. For some years, besides his ordinary teaching, he taught Singing Schools in the evenings, and led Church Choirs on Sundays. Following up his studies privately, he not only completed the regular College Course, but also extended his researches in many directions far beyond it.

He became a good practical Botanist, a Geologist, a Verbatim Reporter, and a Theologian.

He attended a Theological Seminary at Whitestown, Oneida Co. N. Y., in 1848; and the next year he went to Ohio, where, after preaching for a while, he taught in the Geauga Seminary at Chester; and there he became acquainted with the late President Garfield.

He next established an Academy at Burton, Geauga Co., and conducted it successfully for three years. During this time he published a small work on English Grammar. He then returned to New England, and taught Mathematics, German, and Elocution, in the Pierce Academy at Middleborough, Mass.,—then a very flourishing Institution under Prof. J. W. P. Jenks. After three years there he took charge of the Rhode Island Seminary at North Scituate, R. I.,—remaining there two years; and during that time he received Ordination.

Then, after one year in the Academy at Plainfield, Conn., and one in the Public High School at Mystic Bridge, in the same State, he spent a year in lecturing, preaching, &c., and then went into the Army. He went with Gen. Banks to La., and was at the siege of Port Hudson in 1863. After the surrender of that place, returning to the North, he resumed teaching in New London, Conn. Spending a year there,—a winter in Port Chester, N. Y.—a summer in traveling,—a winter in New York City,—and two years in Bristol, Conn., working in a Clock Shop, he went as Professor of Languages to West Virginia College at Flemington, Taylor Co., W. Va.

After two years he became President of that Institution, and held that position nine years. For some five years he was also Pastor of the Church at that place.

While at the College he wrote and published his "Complete Scientific Grammar of the English Language." (Of this work Dr. A. P. Peabody, Professor in Harvard University, Mass., says "For thoroughness, accuracy, and comprehensiveness, it bears the palm over all." Prof. S. S. Haldeman, LL. D. of the University of Pa., says "It displays a wide range of study, and deserves great credit." Hon. W. T. Harris, LL. D., U. S. Commissioner of Education, says "It is a work of extensive labor and great learning." Hon. J. A. Garfield, late President of the U. S., says "I find it much in to admire.")

Leaving Flemington in 1880, Dr. Colegrove spent four years in Illinois, teaching a part of the time,—then a year in Ashtabula Co., O.,— then a summer in Mass., and a winter in Florida,—and then returned to Flemington, W. Va., where he taught a private Classical Institute for four years. In 1890 he made a visit to southern Ohio, and to northern Kentucky, and another to Pa., N. Y., and New England.

The next year he visited N. Y., O., Mich., Ind., Ill., Iowa, and Wis., and then settled down at Deer Park, La Salle Co., Ill., to finish, if possible, the Colegrove Family History.

During the periods of tedious waiting for replies to his letters of inquiry he reviewed his Classical studies, and read several Latin and Greek books which he had not before found opportunity to read. He also developed a set of Memory Lessons and Lectures.

He has at various times written much for the Newspapers and Quarterly Reviews. Among his published Essays are "The Plurality of Worlds", "The Human Spirit", English Grammar and Grammars", "Education", etc. He is also the author of several unpublished works. Among these are a treatise on "Comparative Phonology", a sort of master key to the acquisition of Languages,—a work on "Memory",—a volume of Poems,—and small Treatises, Essays, and Lectures on "The Philosophy of Beauty", "Education and Instruction", "The Great Miracle", "The Siege of Port Hudson", "A Winter in Florida", "A Trip to England", "The Temperance Reform", "Obstacles to the Temperance Reform", "High License", "The Liquor Business as an Industry", "Soldiers' Orphans," and "Excelsior".

He has some mechanical ingenuity, and skill in the use of tools.

Among his Inventions, besides many pieces of illustrative Apparatus, are a Perspective Machine, by which even one not skilled in the art may draw pictures from Nature in true Perspective,—several improvements in the Par-tagraph,—Photographic transparent pictures for Magic Lanterns and Stereopticons,—improvements in Typewriters, etc., etc. He was not the first inventor of the Magic Lantern Transparencies; but he had never seen them, nor any description of them, when he made his invention.

In 1888 he demonstrated the falsity of the famous "Nebular Hypothesis", sometimes credited to La Place.

Many years ago he thoroughly investigated Phrenology, Mesmerism (Hypnotism), and Spiritualism.

He has lectured extensively on various subjects, and in various States. (Hon. P. W. Morris of Harrisville, W. Va., himself an Orator, Lawyer, Editor, and State Senator,—after hearing one of these Lectures, said in his paper, the Gazette, "The Lecture was a complete surprise. No such fine effort was anticipated. Prof. Colegrove is a man of profound learning, of splendid literary taste, an orator, and a genius. No lecturer in America has anything finer or more delightful than his Excelsior."')

Among his unwritten Lectures have been Courses on the Evidences of Christianity, on Physical Geography, on Meteorology, on Physiology and Hygiene, on Astronomy, on English History, on Phonetics, on Elocution,— and Courses illustrated with Apparatus and Experiments on Natural Philosophy, and on Chemistry; also single Lectures on Music, Morals, Manners, Money, and Many other matters, including Indirect Taxation, the Silver Problem, etc., etc. In the department of Elocution the late President Garfield was formerly one of his pupils.

He has been fond of Mathematics, has made many original investigations, and developed many improvements. His new methods, original demonstrations, and solutions of difficult problems in Arithmetic, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, and Conic Sections, would make a large volume.

In the departments of both Physics and Metaphysics he has made some original discoveries and enlarged the boundaries of science.

He has had a great love for the Fine Arts,—has taught Music extensively, both vocal and instrumental,—and has given much attention to Drawing, Painting, Sculpture and Architecture.

His general reading has been extensive and various; but for many years past it has included scarcely any prose Fiction. That he regards as not only useless but extremely pernicious.

He has had a liking for the study of Languages. He has mastered pretty thoroughly the Latin, Greek, Hebrew, Anglo-Saxon, German, and French, and has some acquaintance with the Gothic, Italian, Spanish, Dutch, Russian, Persian and Sanskrit.

He has been a careful reader of Newspapers, and has made a very large Encyclopedia (of more than 40 volumes) composed of the clippings from numerous papers during the past 50 years.

To the production of this Family History he has devoted several years of time and labor, besides the expenditure of several hundreds of dollars in cash. During the present year (1893) especially he has labored under difficulties, pushing on the work in spite of weak and sore eyes, swollen and inflamed hands, racking tortures in almost every joint,—nights sleepless from pain, and many days of scorching heat in which the Mercury in his room has ranged from 92° to 97°. This, too, with no prospect of pecuniary advantage from the work when finished.

Physically he is of a nervous temperament,—in height five feet ten and a half inches,—in weight one-hundred and sixty-five pounds,—with hair originally dark brown, but now gray,—with reddish beard, and hazel eyes,—quick in movement,—and a life-long sufferer from Dyspepsia.

He is a man of strong affections and sympathies, intensely sensitive, hopeful and confiding, and generally misunderstood.

25.—WILLIAM ALFRED COLEGROVE,
p. 234.

He was a most beautiful, lively, and interesting boy,—of remarkable talents and hopeful promise. He had not the wonderful precocity of some prodigies; but his intelligence was far beyond the average of boys of his age. He had a love for books and study; and in his classes he kept fully up with those who were nearly twice as old. He was not only well advanced in all the Common School branches, but had studied Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, and Surveying,—had made good progress in Latin, Nat. Philosophy, Chemistry, Physiology, and Astronomy,—and was quite proficient in Drawing. Being furnished with a Script Alphabet, he learned to write by himself; but he afterwards took lessons in Penmanship. He had a taste for History, Poetry, and Music. At the age of 15 he enlisted in the Army, and discharged faithfully the duties of a soldier. After a year's service he returned home feeble and exhausted by disease,—immediately took the Measles, and died in three weeks. He was kind, generous, and affectionate, and was universally lamented by those who knew him.

The stricken heart of his father has never recovered from his loss; and now the tears flow again.

26.—JOHN GRAY COLEGROVE, p. 235.

Born in Lisbon, New London Co., Conn., he worked upon the farm for a time; but at the age of 16 years he went to Westerly, R. I.,—studied a while, and then learned the trade of a carpenter. After following that for some time he left it and went to work with a Cabinet Maker. Again making a change, he worked as a Ship Carpenter at Mystic Bridge, Conn.

After some years he went to Florida, working at his trade at Key West. Returning from there, he married a descendant of the famous Capt. John Mason,—one of the pioneer settlers of Conn.,—and lived at Mystic Bridge.

About 1862 he removed to Ill., and took up a prairie farm near Sharpsburg in Christian Co., upon which he lived some twenty-five years. He then rented his farm, and moved to Taylorville in the same county,—where he now resides. He succeeded well at his trade; and he has been very prosperous as a farmer; but the severe labors of his younger days have produced their effects upon his physical constitution; and his health is not good.

He is a man of more than usual ability; and he has been a leader among the Grangers.

27.—OSGOOD GHORDIS COLEGROVE,
p. 268.

This man was born near Hanover, Jackson Co., Mich., and passed the first 12 years of his life as most farmer boys do. In 1877 the family moved to Hanover, and he attended the High School, graduating from it in 1883. After working a while in the Printing Office and teaching a District School one term, he entered, in 1884, the Theological Dep. of Lombard University at Galesburg, Ill., was baptized, and became a member of the Universalist Church there.

In 1887 he graduated, accepted a call to Decatur, Mich., was ordained, and entered upon a pastorate there; but at the end of six months he resigned that charge to accept a call to Morrison, Whiteside Co., Ill., where he remained three years. In 1891 he removed to Kent, Portage Co., O., where he still remains.

He is a man of much natural ability, of great energy, a good speaker, and of fine personal appearance.

His jet-black hair and eyes form a contrast to most of the Colegroves. Several years ago he published a little work on the Colegrove Genealogy, including only the descendants of his grandfather.

28.—FREDERIC WELTON COLEGROVE,
p. 286.

He was born in Clinton, Oneida Co., N. Y.—the seat of Hamilton College—and the benign influence of the College reached him at a very early age. In 1876 he studied at Whites-town Seminary, in the same County; and in the fall of the next year he entered Colgate Academy at Hamilton, in Madison Co., finishing there his preparatory course. In the autumn of 1878 he entered Colgate University (formerly Madison Univ.) where he completed the full College Course, and graduated in 1882. Entering the Hamilton Theological Seminary, he pursued a course of two years, and then in 1884, he became the Principal of the Collegiate Institute at Marion, Wayne Co., N. Y. There he was very successful, and remained five years, the school prospering greatly under his administration.

In 1889 he became Professor of the Latin Language and Literature in Colgate University, and continued there until 1892, when he resigned that position, and became President of Ottawa University at Ottawa, Franklin Co., Kansas.

He was received in Kansas with great cordiality. Soon after his arrival one connected with the Institution wrote, "His coming among us has inspired us with confidence, and raised our hopes for the future of the Institution."

His first year of service in the new field has been attended with such success as fully to justify the hopes expressed above. His first Baccalaureate Sermon is a very admirable discourse. He is a strong man, and of great and growing usefulness. His future is full of promise.

29.—DARIUS MAGER COLEGROVE,
p. 298.

Born at Corry, Erie Co., Pa., the days of his boyhood were passed upon the farm. He was well educated,—was a graduate of a Commercial College in Pittsburgh, and went half through a course in Alleghany College at Meadville, Pa.

He has given some attention to farming, but is more especially a newspaper man. He learned the printers' trade, has worked much as a Compositor, and has achieved some distinction as the Editor of several papers.

He is a man of pleasant humor and keen wit, very genial and sociable. He has passed the most of his life at Corry, but now lives at Jamestown, Chautauqua Co., N. Y.

30.—ARTHUR DANA COLEGROVE,
p. 299.

This man was born in Concord, Erie Co., Pa., upon a farm which is now within the corporate limits of the city of Corry. He is a twin brother of Prof. A. E. Colegrove of Baker University, Kas. He was carefully instructed, and in 1876 he graduated from the Corry High School. He then entered Allegheny College at Meadville, completed the course, and graduated from that Institution in 1881.

As a student he had a special partiality for Scientific and Historical studies. In his senior year he won a prize for an Essay, and another for an Oration, and was chosen Orator of his Literary Society.

After his graduation he taught for two years as assistant in the Corry High School, and in 1883 he was elected Superintendent of the City Schools. This position he has held ever since; and in May of the present year (1893) he was again re-elected for another term of three years.

Under his judicious conservative course the schools have not only maintained their high reputation, but have made constant progress. In 1892 he was elected a member of the City Council. In 1891 he erected a handsome residence on Euclid St. in the southern part of the city.

31.—ALBERT ERNEST COLEGROVE,
p. 300.

This twin brother of the preceding began his education in the District Schools of Concord, Pa., and continued it in the High School of Corry, graduating as Valedictorian of his Class in 1876. As a boy he had a passionate fondness for pictures, and unusual skill in making them; and with proper training he would doubtless have become an artist.

He developed considerable ability even without instruction, and became quite proficient, especially in crayon portraiture. He was a teacher of Drawing in the High School while a pupil there. During his early life he was a skillful penman, and executed many pieces of ornamental penwork. He was also given to writing poetry, and some of his boyish effusions attracted attention among his intimate friends. In 1876 he entered Allegheny College at Meadville, Pa., forty miles from his home. He also the same fall visited the Centennial Exposition at Phil., spending most of his time studying the pictures and statuary in the Art Gallery. In College he was a good, but not brilliant student. His taste inclined to literary lines. He had a distaste for Mathematics, and was particularly fond of Latin.

He wrote many Essays, and was on the editorial staff of the College Journal.

His taste for pictures continued, and he often amused his class-mates by producing portraits of his teachers. He furnished many of the comic illustrations for a College Annual published during his course. His inclination to write poetry also developed; and he was the Class Poet at his graduation in 1880. In the fall of that year he began teaching in Dickinson Seminary at Williamsport, Pa., giving instruction in Latin and English. The Seminary was a large and prosperous school under the control of the M. E. Church. While here he was married to a teacher in the Seminary, a daughter of L. K. McCullough, Esq., of Clearfield, Pa. In the spring of 1882 Mr. Colegrove resigned his position in the Seminary, and, having received the year before a local preacher's License, he was appointed the next fall as a supply on Ralston Circuit, twenty miles from Williamsport. At the end of six months he was received on trial into the Central Pa. Conference, and stationed at Mercersburg, Franklin Co., Pa. Here he remained only six months, accepting then the principalship of Emlenton Academy in Venango Co. After one year's service here he was called to the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary at Lima,

N. Y., as Principal of the Commercial College connected with the institution. At the end of two years he was called to his Alma Mater, Allegheny College, as instructor in Latin.

While here he withdrew from his Conference connection; and at the end of three years he resigned his position in the College, and spent the next year as a Stenographer in the employ of the Erie R. R. Co. at Meadville.

In June, 1890, he was elected to the Professorship of the Latin Language and Literature in Baker University at Baldwin, Douglas Co., Kansas, which position he held three years.

He was also a member of the Kansas Academy of Language and Literature. In the summer of 1893 he resigned his position in the University on account of ill health, and returned to Corry, Pa.

32.—SAMUEL FRANCIS COLEGROVE,
p. 354.

This man was born in Warwick, R. I.; but about 1785, when he was eighteen years old, the family moved to Herkimer Co., N. Y. His father afterwards went to Vermont; but he and three at least of his brothers remained in the State of New York.

He settled first at Painted Post in Steuben Co.,—lived afterwards at Addison,—and finally at Woodhull in the same County.

He was a man of much intelligence, energy and enterprise. He was County Surveyor of Steuben Co. for many years, and also Supervisor of the County.

He was an active business man, much engaged in public affairs; and in the course of his life he made and lost several fortunes. He was one of the pioneers, and one of the principal citizens of his County.

His descendants are numerous and widely scattered. Some of them are men of great ability and distinction.

33.—PETER COLEGROVE, p. 373.

This excellent man was born in Mecklenburg, Tompkins Co., N. Y., and was the youngest son in a large family.

At the age of nine years his father's death left him to begin early his struggles in the battle of life.

At the age of sixteen he was converted, and united with the Baptist Church in his native town. Soon afterwards he felt that he must acquire an education in order to fit himself for greater usefulness. Accordingly he went to the Hamilton Literary and Theological Institution (now the Colgate University), where he spent eight years. He seems to have been the first of the Colegroves in America to take a full and thorough course of study. He entered college in 1834, and graduated in 1839; and two years later he graduated from the Theological Seminary. He was ordained at Mecklenburg, and settled first with the Baptist Church at Canandagua. He was afterwards Pastor in Reading, Mead's Creek, Woodhull, Townshend Settlement, Branchport, Italy Hill and Bath.

In these places he received into the Churches some three hundred members. In 1846 he was married at Woodhull, Steuben Co., N. Y., to a most excellent woman. who survived him until 1894. On account of a bronchial affection his physician ordered a complete change of air; and for this purpose he removed, in 1859, to Iowa, and settled near Fairbank, Fayette Co.

He organized a Church at Fairbank, and aided in the formation of three other Churches; but the next year, after an illness of two days, he died Aug. 2, 1860. He was a man of fine personal appearance, of great energy, and very amiable.

34.—FRANCIS COLEGROVE, p. 375.

This man was born in Greenup Co., Ky., but moved with his parents when quite young to Indiana, where he grew up.

In 1876 he went to Missouri, and in 1885 he settled in Henry Co. He then moved to Fall River, Greenwood Co., Kas., where he lived three years; thence back to Butler, Mo., and thence to Montrose, where he died. He united with the M. E. Church when he was 21 years old, and ever after lived the life of a Christian. In his younger days he was an active member, filling the positions of Class-leader, Teacher, and Superintendent of the Sunday School.

He was married three times. Of his children one son is a Preacher; one daughter is a Teacher; and all are respected.

35.—SILAS COLEGROVE, p. 389.

This distinguished man was born in Woodhull, Steuben Co., N. Y., and passed his early days there; but coming to maturity, he “went West,” and “grew up with the country.”

He was married in 1837, at the age of twenty-one years, but studied Law, and in 1839 was admitted to the Bar, beginning his practice in Onondaga Co., N. Y. Soon he removed to Indiana, and after some changes, settled at Winchester, Randolph Co. There he practiced Law, engaged in Farming, was President of a R. R. Company, was a member of the State Legislature, and was for thirteen years Judge of the Circuit Court. On the breaking out of the civil war he raised a Regiment, and went into the army, serving four years as Private, Captain, Colonel, and Brigadier General.

He was Colonel of the 27th Indiana Regiment, and was General of the 5th Brigade of the 1st Division of the 12th Army Corps,—and afterwards of the 3d Brigade of the 1st Division of the 20th Army Corps. By a curious coincidence Gen. Colegrove of Winchester, Ind., fought with Stonewall Jackson at Winchester, Va. He did good service at Chancellorsville, at Gettysburg, and on many other fields.

Three times during the war he was wounded, and obliged to go home for a while to recover.

Two of his sons were also in the Army,—one serving upon his Staff with the rank of Captain, and the other as Major of one Regiment, and Lieutenant Colonel of another.

At the close of the War he returned to his home and business at Winchester; but from September, 1832, till 1893, he was employed in the Pension Office at Washington, D. C.

He is one of those in the Office who refused to receive the increased rate of pay assigned them by Commissioner Tanner. Two of his sons are now living in Chicago, Ill.; but the third remains upon the Homestead at Winchester, Ind.

The General is a man of intelligent resolute purpose, and of indomitable courage and perseverance.

Physically he is rather short and thick-set, of light complexion, reddish hair and beard, light eyes, and great strength. He is the oldest of a family of seventeen children by one mother. p. 36.

36.—JAMES COLEGROVE, p. 412.

This man spent his early days in Indiana, becoming a Teacher,—then a Lawyer,—and then a man of business and enterprise. During the War he served in the 44th Indiana Regiment with the rank of Adjutant. After the War he went to Chicago and engaged in the business of Bookselling and Publishing. At length, giving up his own business, he was employed as a salesman and purchasing agent for another Publishing house.

In 1891 he removed to Fairmont, Los Angeles Co., California, to engage in Fruit-growing. One of his married sons remains in Chicago; and a married daughter lives in Missouri; but the rest of the family went to the new home in the “far West.”

37.—CHAUNCY PETER COLEGROVE,
p. 418.

Born in Bath, Steuben Co., N. Y., he removed, at the age of four years, with the family to Fayette Co., Iowa. His father died the next year, leaving him, with five sisters and a younger brother, to the care of his mother.

They had a farm in Fremont township, which they rented during ten years. At the age of fifteen years the young man bought a team of horses, and began to work the farm himself. He was very successful for seven years, during which time he devoted his evening hours to hard study, and so fitted himself to enter College.

He also taught a District School for two winter terms. In 1877 the family removed to Fayette; and he entered the Upper Iowa University at that place,—graduating from it with the highest honors in 1881.

The next year he was elected Principal of the Normal Department of the University; and that position he held with great credit for four years.

In 1886 he became the Principal of the Public School in Waukon, Allamakee Co., where he gave the highest satisfaction for five years; but, to the very great regret of the people, he resigned that position in 1891 to take charge of the Seminary at Nora Springs in Floyd Co. His first three years there have been remarkably successful; and the prospect for the future is exceedingly bright.

Prof. Colegrove is an excellent writer and public speaker, and a man of fine personal appearance. His wife is also a lady of thorough culture, and of great ability as a teacher.

38.—AUSTIN ELI COLEGROVE, p. 421.

This man was born at Rossville, Clinton Co., Ind., and attended school until he was seventeen years old, when he began to learn the tinner's trade. He was soon interrupted, however, by the War,—went into the Army, served four months, and got home the day he was eighteen years old. He then finished his trade, and worked in several places.

He began his married life at Cynthiana, Ky., but moved back to Indiana in 1871, living at Lebanon, Lafayette, and finally at Attica. In 1877 he joined the Baptist Church, and was licensed to preach. In July of the same year he was severely afflicted by the loss of his two children from Diphtheria. He then moved first to Lafayette, Ind., and afterwards back to Cynthiana, Ky., where he was engaged in business for eight years. Then, in 1891, he gave up his business,—joined the M. E. Church South, and has since devoted himself entirely to the Ministry. His present address (1893) is Millersburgh, Bourbon Co., Ky.

39.—PHILIP T. COLEGROVE, p. 457.

This member of the law firm of Smith & Colegrove, of Hastings, Mich., was born at Winchester, Ind. In 1863 the family moved to Charlotte, Eaton Co., Mich., where he attended the public schools, and at the age of fourteen, entered Olivet College, from which he subsequently graduated.

He taught for one year in the Normal Institute at Charlotte, after which he entered the Law Office of Hon. H. F. Pennington, of Charlotte, and on his 21st birthday was admitted to the Bar. In 1879 he married, and located in Reed City for the practice of Law; but he removed to Hastings in 1880 and formed a partnership with Hon. Clement Smith.

He is a Republican, and has aided the party by his brilliant speeches in many campaigns. For the six years ending Dec. 31, 1888, he was Prosecuting Attorney of Barry Co.

On Jan. 2, 1889, he was sworn in as Senator from the 11th senatorial district of Michigan. In the Senate he was recognized as a strong man, and was assigned an important place on the State Judiciary Committee, and on seven other committees.

He had long been noted as an orator and logician; and he frequently spoke in favor of desirable measures, being recognized as the readiest debater of that session,—taking a stand on the liquor question which delighted all the friends of Temperance. He also introduced some very prominent Bills into the Senate; and when the session closed, he ranked as one of the most popular men of the body. He declined a renomination, although he might easily have been re-elected.

His Address of welcome to the 6th Michigan Cavalry at the banquet on the evening of Jan. 7, 1892, was eloquent, forceful, and masterly. When Gen. Alger, in behalf of the veterans, publicly thanked the Senator for his Address, he only voiced the sentiments of the boys in blue, and paid a deserved compliment to the speaker. Mr. Colegrove is vice-president of the Hastings Furniture Mfg. Co., and director in the City Bank, and the Hastings Wool Boot Co. He is also a very prominent member of the order of Knights of Pythias.

40.—WILLIAM HENRY COLEGROVE,
p. 540.

This leading Dentist of Fulton Co., N. Y., was born in Charleston, Montgomery Co., N. Y., and attended first the District Schools, and afterwards the Fort Plain and Whitestown Seminaries. After teaching District Schools for a few years he studied Dentistry with Dr. J. H. Seymour of Gloversville; and on July 1, 1872, he opened an Office in Johnstown.

After practicing several years he determined to make himself more proficient. Hence he closed his Office, and entered the Philadelphia Dental College, from which he graduated in 1879, and then returned to Johnstown.

For six years he was President of the 4th District Dental Society of the State of New York,—the District comprising eleven Counties. In 1880 he was elected Censor of the State Dental Society,—which office he has held ever since; and last May he was re-elected for another term of four years.

In 1892 he was elected Curator of the Dental Department of the University of Buffalo. He has been very successful pecuniarily in his Profession. He is also a member of the Presbyterian Church, and is one of the most honored of the citizens of the town where he has so long resided.

His wife, too, is a very amiable lady and a skillful Artist, who has filled his house with beautiful pictures.

41.—CALVIN COLEGROVE, p. 495.

This man was born in Montgomery Co., N. Y., near the mouth of Schoharrie Creek. While he was yet a very small boy his father died, leaving him and a brother two years older to the usual hard lot of poor orphans. At length he became a strong and vigorous man, and a skillful Carpenter. After various wanderings he was married at Seneca Falls, N. Y., and then went to Marshall, Mich., where he worked in the shops of the M. C. R. R. Co. On the breaking out of the War in 1861 he was one of the first to enlist for the defense of the Union.—was the Color-bearer of his regiment (the 1st Michigan Infantry.—and was the first Michigan man killed in the first battle of Bull Run. He left one son of tender age, who now lives in Detroit, Mich. His surviving brother knew nothing of his fate until the present writer informed him of it in 1892.

42.—LEWIS COLEGROVE, p. 211.

At the age of 15 years, having mashed his fingers in a mill so that he could not husk corn, he found a place in Moline where he worked to pay his board, and went to School through the Winter. In the Spring he was hired to keep the Boat-landing. He stayed two years, going to School a part of the time. At the age of 17 years he began teaching, and taught six terms of three or four months each in his first District. At the age of 22 years he was married.

He managed the farm of his father-in-law one year; and then he bought a farm (in 1879), upon which he worked in the Summer, teaching School in the Winter. In 1880 he went to Oregon to settle the Estate of his deceased uncle, Merritt Drake. He was appointed Administrator, and two years afterwards sold the property, and divided the proceeds among the heirs. He was a Graduate of the Davenport Business College in 1876. He has been Town Clerk, and 1st Clerk of the Rock Island Farmers' Institute, under the auspices of the State Board of Agriculture. In 1888 he moved to Port Byron where he has carried on the Business of Furniture Dealer and Undertaker. In 1893 he sold his farm.

He is a man of energy and enterprise, but cautious and very commendably prudent. In manners he is genial and social.

43.—SILAS COLEGROVE, p. 355.

Born in what is now the town of Coventry, R. I. (then a part of Warwick), he while very young, went with the family to reside in New London, Conn. About 1785, when he was 16 years old, leaving the paternal home, he "went West" to "grow up with the Country". He obtained work for a while on the banks of the Housatonic River; but finding the soil there to be very poor, he took his ax and small bundle of clothes and walked to Albany, N. Y.

Establishing himself near that place, he married a well educated and industrious woman, and lived there several years, accumulating some property. In 1802 there was a considerable excitement about the "Lake Country", then just opened for settlement; and he removed to the town of Ulysses, then a part of Onondaga Co., near Cayuga Lake. With his ax he built a home in the forest near the present village of Jacksonville. "Ithaca then consisted of a few scattered log cabins; and neighbors were few and far between. There were no School-houses and no Churches. He and a few other pioneers met in a log cabin for prayers; and he led a life wholly consecrated to God. A few years later, when a Methodist Church was established at Jacksonville, he became one of the most active members. He held many important offices in the County from time to time, and was devoted to his family. Of his eight children six lived to become men and women."

He was very successful in his business; and his descendants have been among the most prominent and respectable people of Tompkins and Schuyler Counties. Some of them are ornaments of society in Iowa and California, and others in New York City.

44.—WILLIAM HAMMOND COLEGROVE
p. 563.

He was born in New York City; but when he was about one year old his parents moved to Troy, N. Y., where he received his education. At the age of 20 years he went to work, very much grieved because he could not have a College Education.

He entered as clerk the Steamboat Office at Troy, where he remained one year; then was promoted to Clerk on one of the Hudson River Steamers,—afterwards to Purser,—and finally to Captain. Several times he was obliged to give up his position, and travel for his health, but each time returned home finding he was as well there,—and was always welcomed back to his old position. He was married in 1856, and from that time resided in Albany, N. Y.

He was one of the leading members of Trinity Episcopal Church, and was always a most generous giver to his well loved church. On April 1st, 1872 he was attacked by Pneumonia, and was never well again. One year later he was obliged to retire from active business, but lingered two years more, and died suddenly of consumption.

The following appeared in a city paper at the time of his death: "He had been a Clerk on the Hudson River steamers for near thirty years, and was probably the oldest living steamboat clerk. He was at first clerk of the old line of Troy steamers, composed of the Empire and Troy; and on leaving that line became successively clerk of the People's Line boats, the Newton, Drew, Dean Richmond, Niagara, etc., being, after he left Troy, all the time in the employ of the People's Line in one of their best vessels until, about three years ago, he was compelled to leave on account of failing health. He was well known in this city and widely known throughout the country. He had not an enemy in the world, and had won hosts of warm friends by his urbanity, obliging disposition and kindly nature. His integrity was of the very highest order."

45.—RILEY COLEGROVE, p. 376.

"His father died when he was quite young. He moved to Rossville, Ind., and was living there when the Mexican war broke out. He enlisted in the service under Capt. Milroy of Delphi. After the war he located at Lafayette, and married Miss Newport. In 1853 he moved to Lebanon. For a time he worked at the cooper's trade, and then engaged in the grocery business on the west side of the square. In 1858 he was nominated for sheriff by the republican party, and was elected by a good majority. He was re-elected by an increased majority at the expiration of his term. He made an efficient and capable officer, and was very popular with the people. A short time after his second term as sheriff he moved to a farm north of the city, where he resided till his death. He was recognized as one of the model farmers of the county; a man of good judgment, progressive and uniformly successful. He was a model citizen and man as well. He had the power of winning the love and respect of all classes, and was never known to betray a trust imposed upon him. Always identified with commendable enterprises for the public welfare, he received the full confidence of the people. Although a man of positive convictions, he never made himself offensive. At the age of 24 he joined the Methodist church, and for a portion of his life was an active officer of it. The procession of vehicles which followed his remains to the grave was over a mile in length."
